

Matthew M Johnson – Reforestation

Matthew M Johnson is an artist/educator who lives and creates in Tacoma.

“I am currently exploring the new ‘growth’ in and around our urban areas. Cell-tower ‘groves’ are becoming more noticeable everyday. As Thomas Hill and other early American artists painted the natural wonders of our new country, I too am interested in documenting our surrounding environment. With this body of work I continue my exploration of Tacoma's wireless growth, as a reference to both our dwindling green spaces and our growing love affair with new technologies.”
