Overview

- Ratings of quality of life and overall satisfaction showed some signs of decreasing from the 2020 survey.
- Police investigations, code enforcement, street condition, and police patrol activities remain high priorities from the 2020 survey.
- Police community programs, street cleaning, storm drainage, ease of bicycle travel and equitable access to facilities, services and infrastructure are newly identified high priority services in this year's survey.
- Homelessness, housing, crime, population growth, and policing were commonly cited as major issues for the City of Tacoma to face in the next ten years.
- Measures of safety and confidence with police declined noticeably across several measures, and racial and demographic differences continue to be observable in these measures.

Methodology

- This Community Satisfaction Survey of the general population used Computer-Assisted-Telephone-Interviewing with calls placed between November 15th, 2021, and January 16th, 2022.
- Results are weighted by age, gender and district based on the most recent available estimates from the United States Census Bureau for the area.
- To ensure adequate representation of current demographics, the survey intentionally reached residents via home and cellular phone (59% home phone, 41% cellular phone).
- The person with the most recent birthday in the household was asked to participate in the survey, to ensure respondents were random within each household.

Methodology Continued

- 750 respondents were reached, with good representation across all Councilmanic districts (see table to the left).
- The survey resulted in a 3.6% margin of error, using a confidence level of 95%.
- Respondents represented a variety of age, gender, and racial groups.
- Measures of significance in the analysis that follows are based on a 95% confidence interval.
- Significant differences from the population average are color-coded in the tables comparing Councilmanic Districts as follows:

▲ ▼ Arrows and font colors indicate statistically significant differences from the 2022 City population average. Statistically significant results are determined using non-parametric t-tests at a 95% level of confidence.

The results were weighted based on the most recent available estimates of age and sex from the American Community Survey 2019 data<sup>1</sup>, and also the race distribution estimates from the 2020 Census Redistricting Data<sup>2</sup>. Weighting was applied based on the following demographic distributions (see table to the right).

Measuring the Priorities of the Community

High Priority

Moderate Priority

Low Priority

Understanding what is important to community members and where satisfaction is lowest is a statistical process that uses specific survey questions, such as satisfaction with overall municipal services, and compares them statistically to how people believe the City is performing in specific City services.

The result is a list of key performance indicators that demonstrate areas of priority where the City is most likely to have a positive impact on community satisfaction levels once improvements are made.

The statistical test breaks lists of services into high, moderate, and low-level priorities based on where indicators fall within the overall ranking. The term "importance" assigned to the correlation between the outcome variable (e.g. overall satisfaction), and a given service (e.g. parking enforcement), while the "performance gap" is the proportion of people that have expressed dissatisfaction with the service in question. These results are multiplied to arrive at a Priority for Improvement Ranking order.

The Community Priorities test is applied in several different portions of the report below and will be identifiable by having the term "Community Priorities for Improvement" in the header section, as well as a legend that resembles the one demonstrated above. The priorities are established relative to all other sub-sections in the report, meaning that the top priorities may fall more often into certain sub-sections of City services.
