B. APPROVAL OF AGENDA

The agenda was approved.

C. APPROVAL OF MINUTES

The minutes of the regular meeting on September 16, 2015 were reviewed. Commissioner Erickson suggested clarifying a sentence on page 5, as shown below, by inserting a word “detached” (underlined):

“It was noted that detached ADUs would only be allowed in rear yards, but alley access would not be required.”

The minutes were approved as amended.

D. DISCUSSION ITEMS

1. 2015 Annual Amendment to Comprehensive Plan and Land Use Regulatory Code

Stephen Atkinson, Planning Services Division, facilitated the Commission's continued review of public comments received through the August 19th public hearing process and the corresponding staff suggestions for revisions to the 2015 Annual Amendment proposal. The review focused on the subjects of “Comprehensive Plan Update”, “Affordable/Infill Housing Regulations” and “Code Cleanup”.

Mr. Atkinson reviewed comments from the Puget Sound Regional Council (PSRC) on topics of Annexation, Airports, and Affordable Housing. For Annexation, they had requested more cross referencing between the Public Facilities and Services Chapter and the Urban Form Element and more specifics on when the City intended to annex the urban growth area. For airports, they had requested policies promoting land use compatibilities. For Affordable Housing, they had requested additional data for evaluating housing affordability in terms of household incomes and availability of affordable units.

Joshua Diekmann, Public Works, provided a review of changes to the Transportation Element in response to comments received. In response to comments from the PSRC on Land Use assumptions, they had confirmed that the modeling was consistent with other elements and made some language revisions. In response to a question from the PSRC on modeling results, Mr. Diekmann reviewed projections for the State's facilities and the City's network. In response to a request from the PSRC for clarification on financing forecasts in the project list, Mr. Diekmann reviewed that they had a new detailed project appendix. In response to comments from the Parking Technical Advisory Group, Mr. Diekmann noted that the new version of the document had additional language on consideration for parking during the design process. In response to concern from the Port of Tacoma about prioritization in the project list, he noted that the final version had some projects elevated including projects from the Port. In response to concern from the Port of Tacoma about a bike facility identified on Taylor Way, Mr. Diekmann noted that while the space is limited, there are currently no non-motorized facilities or sidewalks.

Mapping updates to the Transportation Master Plan were reviewed. Mr. Atkinson noted that the Centers of Local Importance (COLI) map was a key map included in the final appendix. He reported that “Center of Local Importance” is a countywide designation and places designated as centers of local importance would receive additional points in countywide grant competitions. The COLI map included Mixed-Use Centers, Regional Growth Centers, Manufacturing/Industrial Centers, Convenience Centers, Connective Corridors, and Signature Trails. In response to a question on how the COLI map was different from other maps in the Comprehensive Plan, the distinctions were discussed and it was noted that the intent is to put forward reasonable criteria for designating centers of local importance.

Land Use Designations were discussed. Mr. Atkinson reviewed some examples of cleanups and four requests that had been received. Examples of cleanups included an example where an area designated as Open Space already had a significant development project; a scenario where a designation partially overlapped an adjacent parcel; an example with existing multifamily in an area zoned and designated for single family; an example of a T1 zoning issue where older site specific rezones required a cleanup to reflect the present situation; an example where a largely undeveloped property could potentially be designated for multifamily development; and an example where a commercial location was zoned single family.

Mr. Atkinson discussed the requests that had been received. For a request at 7034 S Alaska to allow more general commercial development, Commissioners expressed concern that it would remove some of the existing transition and commented that more scrutiny was needed for changes being proposed for future development. For a large site at 72nd and McKinley where there was request for a neighborhood commercial designation, Mr. Atkinson commented that the staff recommendation was to maintain the lower density single family designation. Mr. Atkinson discussed 56th and Tacoma Mall Blvd where there could be some possible impact from potential realignment of the freeway and commercial properties were preparing for potential relocation by acquiring adjacent properties with the hope of rezoning them for potential relocation. For 5340 N Bristol where a rezone had been requested for high density multifamily, the preference of staff was to maintain the transition.

Chair Beale recessed the meeting at 5:00 p.m. for the Public Hearing concerning Billboard Regulations. The discussion of the 2015 Annual Amendment to the Comprehensive Plan and Land Use Regulatory Code resumed at 6:05 p.m., after the conclusion of the public hearing.

Chair Beale reviewed that that Commissioners had expressed concern over some of the proposed intensity changes and asked that Mr. Atkinson review which items were cleanup items and which were more substantial. Mr. Atkinson noted examples that would not be considered cleanup items including 5320 McKinley. Commissioners concurred on the Open Space, T zoning, and Parcel Boundary cleanup items. Commissioners concurred on considering the private requests and non-cleanup items as circumstances for review as part of a future work program.

Mr. Atkinson reviewed some of the other comments that had been received including comments on Equity, Capital Facilities Project Criteria, Climate mitigation, undergrounding of utilities, cleanups, and a suggestion to name the Comprehensive Plan “One Tacoma”.

Commissioner Santhuff provided the following comments and suggestions for the Comprehensive Plan (page numberings referring to those of the Public Review Document prepared for the Commission’s public hearing on August 19, 2015):

- Page 74. The description of the Brewery district should emphasize adaptive reuse opportunities such as a potential location for a Farmer’s market.
- Page 77. The description and goals for Crossroads Centers should note that the population goal in Policy UF-6.1 is a minimum. The same suggestion was noted for Policy UF-7.2.
- Page 80. The Transit Station Areas description should include a mention of regional light rail.
- Page 81. In the Corridors section they could identify Great Streets or streets that are important to Tacoma. Vice-Chair Wambach suggested that they could identify bicycle boulevards as well.

- Page 83. For Open Space Corridors, add a policy under Goal UF-11 on highway and interstate periphery and the opportunity for plantings that beautify the City and link open space corridors.
- Page 85. The Wedge should not be in the Post-War Slopes Historic Residential Pattern area.
- Page 86. UF-13.28 notes restoration work on the North Proctor Bridge that has been completed.
- Page 97. Include the Commerce Street Station in the map of Transit Station Areas.
- Page 108. Under the Design Quality section include a policy on excellence in infrastructure as it relates to place making, particularly for streetscapes and bridges.
- Page 108. Encourage street level development to avoid plateaus above the streetscape, possibly incorporated under DD-1.2
- Page 109. Under the Parking section, include a policy that parking should meet the character of the street aesthetically and not create a safety issue. Commissioners concurred with language encouraging safe parking consistent with the character of the desired streetscape.
- Page 117. Under DD-8.3 include support for development of a permanent central market facility and dedicate spaces for neighborhood markets.
- Page 131. In the Improving Environmental Quality Section, include a policy discouraging the sale of invasive non-native species of plants.

- Page 285. Strike “South” from “South Downtown”.

Following the subject of “Comprehensive Plan Update”, “Affordable/Infill Housing Regulations” was discussed. This was a follow-up on the discussion at the last meeting on September 16, 2015. Brian Boudet, Planning Services Division Manager, reported that there had been a number of changes included in a summary sheet that had been distributed to Commissioners. Mr. Boudet noted that some of the changes were to ensure historic compatibility and make sure that proposals did not detract from historically significant structures. They would also make a clear connection in the code between discretionary permitting and the landmarks preservation process. Mr. Boudet reported some modifications to original proposals and clarification on the limitations placed upon the pilot program. Mr. Boudet discussed outstanding questions including the justification for the $10,000 number used in the fee in lieu concept. He reviewed that a consultant report had determined a number close to the $10,000 amount, while recognizing that a distinction could be made in the Downtown area. For upzones, Mr. Boudet reviewed the AHPAG concerns about retaining the upzone inclusionary requirement and suggested that they could modify the market-to-affordable ratio from the currently proposed 1:1 ratio. Discussion ensued. Commissioners concurred on a 3:1 ratio.

Commissioners provided the following questions and comments:

- 1.39.040 Program Requirements, section F. Commissioners concurred on changing the language requiring that affordable units be the same on the interior to “generally comparable”.
- 1.39.070 Residential Upzones, section B. Commissioner Wambach questioned if the policy on City-initiated upzoning was appropriate, commenting that they did not have the research and analysis to include it. Commissioners concurred with revising the language to “City-initiated upzones shall be evaluated for housing affordability needs”.
- Commissioner Erickson asked if the Commission would have the opportunity to look at the Infill Design Guidelines. Mr. Boudet responded that the design guidelines would be approved by the director, but they could add language of “in consultation with the Commission.”
- 13.05.115 Residential Infill Pilot Program, section G. Commissioner Erickson suggested that submittal requirements should also include photos of adjacent structures.
- 13.06.640 Conditional use permit, sections F and G. Commissioner Erickson suggested that if they were going to require that two-family development present the general appearance of a single family house in R-2 Districts, they should require it for R-2SRD and HMR-SRD as well. Mr. Boudet responded that the requirement was about the sense of compatibility in single family neighborhoods. Chair Beale also recommended only allowing a consolidated shared entrance in section G, subsection C.

- 13.06.100 Residential Districts, section B, item 5. Chair Beale asked if the code language would allow alteration of historically contributing structures in HMR-SRD. Commissioners concurred with revising the language to specify alterations permitted by a Conditional Use Permit, as long as it is not inconsistent with the historic district character.
- Vice-Chair Wamback recommended noting the Planning Commission's discussion of the need for a formal design review process for the City at the macro level.
- Vice-Chair Wamback recommended noting that their work on affordable housing issues, including upzoning and the bonus palettes, is not finished.

Upon completing the review of public comments and discussion of corresponding revisions to the 2015 Annual Amendment, the Commission was ready to consider forwarding a recommendation to the City Council. The Commission decided to vote on the five main subjects contained in the 2015 Annual Amendment package individually before voting on the entire package. It was noted that with Commissioner Waller being excused earlier, there were 7 Commissioners voting.

Vice-Chair Wamback motioned to recommend that the City Council establish the proposed Narrowmoor Addition Conservation District. Commissioner Erickson seconded. The motion was approved five to two with Commissioners Neal and Petersen voting against. Commissioner Neal commented that she voted against because it was not fair to ask everyone else to densify and because of the large amount of infrastructure for a small number of houses. Commissioner Petersen commented that she voted against for the following reasons: it was an equity issue; they were already afforded additional protection by being zoned R-1 with a View Sensitive Overlay; it would limit people's opportunity to use their property the way they want; there weren't any specific historically significant homes in the subdivision; and concern that the design review language praises the man who platted the area, when he is not a person the residents of Tacoma should look up to.

Vice-Chair Wamback motioned to recommend that the City Council adopt the various cleanup amendments to the Land Use Regulatory Code. Commissioner Erickson seconded. The motion was approved unanimously.

Vice-Chair Wamback motioned to recommend that the City Council adopt the proposed regulatory changes to support housing affordability and infill development with all of the discussed amendments to be included in a staff summary report double checked by the Commission. Commissioner Erickson seconded. The motion was approved six to one with Vice-Chair Wamback voting against. Vice-Chair Wamback commented that while he supported the overall concept, he felt that the package was not ready for implementation.

Vice-Chair Wamback motioned to recommend that the City Council adopt the Mixed-Use Centers Review and the recommendations contained therein. Commissioner Neal seconded. The motion was approved unanimously.

Vice-Chair Wamback motioned to recommend that the City Council adopt the proposed update to the Comprehensive Plan, tentatively titled "One Tacoma", with the discussed amendments and as reviewed by the Planning Commission. Commissioner Neal seconded. The motion was approved unanimously.

Vice-Chair Wamback motioned to amend the Draft Letter of Recommendation and the Draft Findings of Fact and Recommendations Report to incorporate the Commission's discussion, acknowledge the differences in the votes, summarize the reasons for the opposing votes, make other amendments as recommended by the Commission, and for the final versions of the Letter and the Report to be presented to the Chair for signature. Commissioner Erickson seconded. The motion was approved unanimously.

2. Public Hearing – Billboard Regulations

At 5:03 p.m., Chair Beale called the public hearing to order and reviewed the procedures, noting that written comments would be accepted through October 9, 2015.

Brian Boudet, Planning Services Division Manager, reviewed that the purpose of the hearing was to take public testimony on the proposed code amendments concerning billboards. He discussed the key issues of the draft proposal: “receiving zones” where billboards would be allowed; the exchange program ratios; buffering requirements; dispersal between billboards; and amortization provisions. Mr. Boudet reviewed maps that identified areas within buffers, areas dispersed from existing billboards, and areas on significant corridors where billboards would be allowed. He noted that nonconforming standards would be retained. Amortization would have a two phased schedule providing 3 years for all faces in R, SHR, CONS, C-1 and RCX districts and 5 years for all remaining nonconforming structures. The Planning Commission’s recommendations would be discussed on October 21.

Chair Beale called for testimony. The following citizens testified:

(1) Dale Kelley, Business Owner:

Mr. Kelley commented that as a business owner he was involved in many non-profit organizations. He reported that in December 2014, Rocky Ridge Elementary School applied for a $100,000 grant and approval from voters was required. Clear Channel Outdoor offered pro bono public billboard advertising to help generate the necessary votes. He commented that Clear Channel understood the importance of our kids and their education and were active and supportive participants. He noted that even though the school did not receive the winning votes, it was an important experience for the elementary school, children, business leaders, and other supporters to know that a corporation like Clear Channel had an investment in this major project. He commented that Clear Channel had, through donation of pro bono public service advertising, helped bring the community together by supporting our civic organizations. He added that they are a great advertising vehicle to our economy and allow many local businesses to target their marketing in the different neighborhoods.

(2) Peter Wangoe, Clear Channel Outdoor Advertising:

Mr. Wangoe commented that Clear Channel Outdoor operated the majority of the billboards in Tacoma and that their media is a respected, affordable, and effective means of advertising that is depended upon by many local businesses that contribute to the labor market and the growth of the local economy. He noted that many land owners depend on their sign rent as a significant source of annual income. He reviewed that Clear Channel had donate millions in pro bono advertising to civic organizations and non-profits whose billboard messages bring the community together and make Tacoma a better place to call home. He reported that they operate their business within the letter and intent of the Tacoma sign code, adding that all of their billboards currently in place were legal when built. He commented that Clear Channel had worked as a member of the Billboard Community Working Group to create recommendations for sign ordinance modernizations and that the will of this stakeholder group should be the blueprint for the Commission’s recommendations to the City Council. He commented that the Task Force’s recommendations were significantly different from the Working Group’s recommendations especially with regards to amortization. Mr. Wangoe commented that amortization as a tool to control a non-conforming land use puts all businesses at risk and creates confusion for companies considering upgrades or enhancements. He added that it is a fallacy to believe that the tool could be used to remove all of the billboards in the city over time since the majority of Tacoma’s billboards are adjacent to the National Highway System and thereby subject to the provisions of the Federal Highway Beautification Act. He commented that the proposed ordinance takes a punitive approach and would not yield the desired results.

(3) Doug Schafer, Tacoma Central Neighborhood Council:

Mr. Schafer commented that the 1997 ordinance, which required removal of non-conforming billboards, remains lawful. He reviewed that Clear Channel had purchased the non-conforming billboards in 2002 and then sued the City when it began to enforce the ordinance. He reviewed that the Task Force report included a note that information is needed about the application of 2012 Federal Highway Legislation. He commented that if the 200 billboards become legal, Federal Law will require that the City pay just compensation if removal is enforced. He added that the City must get clarification from Federal and State officials before recklessly repealing the existing code’s amortization provision. He noted that Clear Channel would sue if the City enforces its lawful authority to remove illegal billboards, but added that there was no point in having laws if the City would not enforce them. He commented that Clear Channel Outdoor should not be granted an exclusive franchise and by allowing new billboards through removal of existing illegal billboards. He added that the exchange program could result in lawsuits from other competing sign companies because it unlawfully grants Clear Channel a monopoly. He suggest that any new billboard permits should have fixed terms such as fifteen or twenty years as it would reduce further costs to the City if they must be removed at some point.

(4) Patricia Mannie, Patricia & Co.:

Ms. Mannie reported that that she owned a marketing firm and some of her clients are small business owners. She commented that billboards are the most effective marketing for their dollar. She reported that one of her clients, G. Donnalsion's Restaurant, had seen their sales double in one month after advertising on four billboards. She commented that it was economical to continue to have billboards and asked Commissioners to consider allowing Clear Channel to continue to be a substantial community partner.

(5) Stephanie Schramm, Schramm Marketing:

Ms. Schramm commented that she handled the marketing and media for 15 to 20 small business owners who cannot afford major media and have to look local to get their advertising done. She commented that billboards are one of the few effective and affordable advertising methods left for small business owners. She hoped that the Commission would consider finding a win-win situation so that the billboards could continue to be available for small business owners.

(6) Jori Adkins:

Ms. Adkins reported that they had owned a lease on two billboards above their building and had only made around one thousand dollars each year. She discussed Clear Channel's efforts to negotiate a continuance of the lease and her decision to have the billboards removed. She reported that the language in the lease had made removal of one the billboards challenging. She commented that billboards drew attention away from the local businesses and buildings.

(7) Jeff Ryan:

Mr. Ryan commented that he was opposed to all billboards and that they were visual pollution. He commented that he would like to see all billboards removed. He reviewed that the issue had a long history and the City had once made billboards illegal in the 1920s.

(8) John Ketler:

Mr. Ketler commented that it is easy to think about the billboard discussion in terms of multinational companies like Ackerley. He reported that he is a property owner and owns one of the 17 billboards that were listed as priority for removal. He commented that when their billboard was put up it was a legal billboard and met all of the requirements of the city. He felt that it was unconscionable that the City could decide that they did not like things and then have them removed. He noted that over time things change and some property owners had chosen to remove billboards on their own. He reported that there are hundreds of property owners that benefit from having billboards on their land.

(9) Dale Reed:

Mr. Reed commented that he had been the only property owner at the Community Working Group. He observed that over the years it had been a polarizing issue between neighborhood groups and sign companies, with property owners rarely mentioned. He added that there were more than 150 property owners with billboards. He commented that they should either leave his property alone or buy it, but they shouldn't steal it. He commented that their billboards were an important asset and were part of what went into developing the property. He reported that they were one of the first owners in the 6th Avenue region to spend money to turn a bare lot into something that added to the community. He discussed how on a road trip he had been surprised to find a Clear Channel sign in Turkey. He wondered if the officials in Tacoma understood how powerful Clear Channel was and how there was no way that they would allow this slippery slope to happen. He commented there was room for the code to change, but retroactively taking property away was the wrong move.

(10) Jill Jensen:

Ms. Jensen reported that she had been part of the Community Working Group. She commented that while there were over 150 people who own billboards, there were also 2800 people opposed to the billboard issue. She commented that Clear Channel was not there in good faith as they knew the billboards would have to be removed when they originally bought them, but instead chose to sue the City. She commented that you can fight and win against billboard companies, noting that Rapid City, South Dakota had recently won a lawsuit with a billboard company in federal court. She commented that Clear Channel would not remove the billboards at the end of the five year amortization period and urged the Commissioners to take a stand so that the issue could be resolved.

(11) Susan Ryan:

Ms. Ryan commented that she wanted to know why they were still discussing billboards when previously they were going to be removed. She felt that it did not make sense to try and accommodate a few business owners and Clear Channel. She commented that it seemed like an antiquated method of advertising and many citizens did not want them. She commented that too few businesses were benefiting from it versus the bulk of the citizens. She encouraged Commissioners to be leaders and take a stand now.

Seeing no one else coming forward, Chair Beale closed the public hearing at 5:54 p.m. and recessed the meeting. The meeting was resumed at 6:05 p.m., and the Commissioners continued the discussion of the 2015 Annual Amendment to the Comprehensive Plan and Land Use Regulatory Code, which was concluded at 8:31 p.m., when the discussion of Billboard Regulations resumed.

Commissioners provided the following comments and questions:

- Commissioner Erickson recommended consideration of buffers based on visibility and distance for the Downtown area.
- Commissioner Erickson recommended that the setback from Conservation Districts be eliminated.
- Commissioners requested additional maps showing the different buffers impacting the Downtown area.
- Vice-Chair Wamback commented that he would like to see alternative language that makes no change from the amortization language that exists currently, noting that they were under no legal or ethical obligation to give billboard owners more time.
- Vice-Chair Wamback questioned if they should make a statement in the Findings of Fact and Recommendations that Tacoma should seek to be free of billboards as a long term goal.
- Chair Beale commented that the Findings of Fact and Recommendations should include a statement that sign blight also includes on premise signage and better regulations are needed.
- Chair Beale expressed concern that by implementing the proposed regulations, they could create a scenario where MAP21 would require that they compensate billboard owners near highways if removal is enforced. He requested for the City Attorney to be present at the next meeting.
- Commissioner Erickson questioned if there would be enough receiving areas to achieve the removal of all nonconforming billboards.
- Commissioners clarified that the Task Force members had not recommended making 672 square foot billboards in industrial areas conforming, but legally non-conforming.

E. COMMUNICATION ITEMS & OTHER BUSINESS

Lihuang Wung, Planning Services Division, updated the Commission on the following items:

- (1) Minutes of the Billboard Task Force's meetings on August 17, August 18, August 25, September 8, and September 10, 2015 were included in the meeting packet. Commissioners acknowledged receiving the minutes.
- (2) There was a potential cancellation for the meeting on November 18, 2015.

Mr. Boudet updated the Commission on the following items:

Summary

Unified Development Code

Currently, the City of Tacoma is addressing the ease, simplicity and predictability of its permitting process. To that end, the City's Planning and Development Services Department (PDS) is initiating the creation of a Unified Development Code (UDC). The UDC is a way to provide a predictable, customer service-oriented process that allows for increased economic development and investment, while protecting the natural, built, social and cultural assets that define a unique sense of community.

About the Unified Development Code

The City's UDC project will streamline and consolidate development codes, permits and processes into a single, more user-friendly document. This document will include all development-related regulations, including zoning, subdivisions, shoreline and critical areas, building codes, site development and administrative provisions such as fees, code authority, etc. Within a single code title, the codes will be organized in a way that reflects the order of design, development and permitting processes. As part of this effort, the City is also addressing out of date or conflicting information currently in the codes.

Project Goals / Schedule

Specific goals associated with the UDC project include the following:

- Clear delegation of authority for decision making
- Clear reference to standards and guidelines
- Consolidation of code sections related type of development (i.e. building, site development) versus code authority
- Simplification of fees
- Available in an online format designed to improve accessibility, searchability, and consistency
- Council adoption of UDC is intended for spring, 2016

Background Information

What are Development Codes?

Development codes regulate where and what type of development may occur, including land use, density, setbacks, and transportation requirements. When done well, codes make it easier for a community to implement its vision. However, when they are out of date, or doesn't line up with the community's vision, or are in conflict, codes can actually inhibit desired development.

Code sections or portions of code sections currently being considered for consolidation into the UDC are as follows:

- Title 2 – Buildings
- Title 3 – Fire
- Title 9 – Public Ways
- Title 10 – Public Works
- Title 12 – Utilities
- Title 13 – Land Use Regulatory Code

Title 19

Summary

Chapter 19 of the Tacoma Municipal Code serves as the Unified Development Code, and is intended to simplify and streamline the land use approval and permitting process in order to maximize efficiencies within and between City departments, and to provide a better customer experience for those seeking permits and approvals.

The purpose of the Unified Development Code is to maintain a single source of development regulations that are easy to use, amend, and interpret, and which clarifies approvals, appeals, and authorities. Title 19 has been created in order to improve predictability, consistency, efficiency, and communication during the permitting process. In doing so, City departments will run more efficiently, with better integration, and the external client will experience a higher level of certainty regarding project approvals and construction.

19.01 Administration

This chapter is comprised of the several sections regarding the administration of the current codes. Included in this chapter are four major sections:

- 19.01.100 Fees
- 19.01.200 Permit Process
- 19.01.300 Authority
- 19.01.400 Appeals

19.02 Zoning and Subdivisions

19.03 Environmental Protection

19.04 Site Development

Agenda Item
D-2

To: Planning Commission
From: John Harrington, Development Services Division
Subject: Billboard Regulations
Meeting Date: October 21, 2015
Memo Date: October 15, 2015

The Planning Commission conducted a public hearing on October 7, 2015 concerning the proposed billboard regulations and kept the record open through October 9 to accept written comments. At the next meeting on October 21, 2015, the Commission will review public comments received, and consider revisions to the proposal based on the comments.

The Commission will also review potential wall sign receiving areas in Downtown Tacoma. At the last meeting, the Commission expressed the desire to review various buffering options for the downtown area to see if more receiving area could be generated. Staff will present the following options based on the original recommendation of 250 foot buffers:

- Option 1 – Existing 250 foot buffers, minus the buffer around the Conservation district downtown
- Option 2 – Option 1, and remove downtown schools buffer
- Option 3A – Option 2, and reducing historic building buffer to 100 feet
- Option 3B – Option 2, and no historic building buffer
- Option 4 – Option 3B, and no DR buffer
- Option 5 – Option 4, and DR allowed zone
- Option 6 – Option 5, and no downtown dispersion from existing pole signs (presumably they would be removed)

Upon completing the review and discussion, the Commission will consider making a recommendation to the City Council. To facilitate the Commission's review and action, the following documents are attached:

1. Public Comments and Staff Responses and Suggestions Report
2. Compilation of Public Comments (as "Attachment A" to the Comments/Responses Report)
3. Draft Letter of Recommendation
4. Draft Findings of Fact and Recommendations Report
5. Draft Code Amendments (as "Exhibit A" to the Findings/Recommendations Report)
6. Maps of Billboards Buffering Options

Billboard Code Amendments

Public Comments and Staff Responses Report October 15, 2015

The Planning Commission conducted a public hearing on October 7, 2015, and kept the record open until October 9, 2015, to receive public comment concerning the proposed amendment of the Tacoma Municipal Code to address billboard regulations.

Eleven citizens testified at the public hearing (see Attachment A), 27 written comments were received (see Attachments B). Summarized below are the major issues and concerns reflected in the public comment and the corresponding staff responses.

The complete text of the proposed amendments and all relevant background information are compiled in the "Public Review Document", which is posted at www.cityoftacoma.org/planning (and click on "Billboards").

1. Subject: Clear Channel and Billboard Advertising supports small business and non-profits

Commenter: Business Owner, Dale Kelley

Comments: Clear Channel provided pro-bono public billboard advertising that helped generate support for a grant application by Rocky Ridge Elementary School. This demonstrates support for the kids at the school and the greater community. He said billboards are a great advertising vehicle for our economy and allow many local businesses to target their marketing in different neighborhoods.

Commenter: Peter Wangoe, Clear Channel Outdoor

Comments: Clear Channel provides an affordable and effective means of advertising for many local businesses and contributes to the labor market and the growth of the local economy. He said that many land owners depend on the sign rent as a significant source of annual income and the company provides free advertising to civic organizations and non-profits.

Commenter: Patricia Mannie, Patricia & Co.

Comments: Small business clients of her marketing firm say that billboards are the most effective form of advertising for the dollar. One client saw their sales double in the month after advertising on four billboards.

Commenter: Stephanie Schramm, Schramm Marketing.

Comments: She handles the marketing and media for 15 to 20 small business owners who cannot afford major media. Billboards are one of the few effective and affordable advertising models left for small business owners. She wants the commission to find a win-win solution to keep billboards available to small business owners.

Commenter: Deborah Crawley, Brain Injury Alliance of Washington

Issue: Billboard usage is beneficial to her non-profit organization and Clear Channel has been a generous provider of community services to many non-profits. Billboard messaging helps to prevent injuries and to educate the public. She noticed an increase of consumers seeking information about TBI after billboard advertising was used. Attempts to limit outdoor advertising even further would prove harmful to many non-profits in the city.

Commenter: Kurt Jacobson, Tacoma consulting business owner

Issue: Billboards are an essential element of the advertising toolbox for many small, local businesses such as LeRoy Jewelers, Taylor-Thomason Insurance and more. It is the most effective and efficient medium available and allows local companies to compete with larger regional and national firms. Taking them away will harm local businesses and give the message that Tacoma is not business friendly.

Commenter: Andrew Lewis-Lechner, Development Director, Courage360

Issue: Clear Channel has been a wonderful community partner for Courage 360, donating pro-bono billboard space so that Courage360 could create an impact with public awareness messages. It allows clients to reach economic independence, get jobs, combat homelessness and attain hope and spirit. He does not want to have regulations that limit the ability of non-profits to get their message out.

Staff Response: Comments noted.

2. Subject: Amortization and MAP 21

Commenter: Jon Ketler and Dale Reed; Reed/Ketler Billboards

Comments: They own two billboard structures and cannot believe that the city could take away a use and structure that was approved by the City just because some people do not like the looks of the use or structure. If the city wants to take a billboard, they should buy, not steal it. Billboards are an important asset. There is room for the code to change, but retroactively taking property away is the wrong move.

Commenter: Peter Wangoe, Clear Channel Outdoor

Comments: The Planning Commission Task Force's recommendations differ greatly from the CWG recommendations which were to be the basis for refinement and completion of a PC recommendation. He says that amortization is not a viable tool to remove billboards because the majority of Tacoma's billboards are adjacent to the National Highway System, where additional protections for billboards are provided.

Commenter: Doug Schafer, Tacoma Central Neighborhood Council

Comments: Mr Schafer made the following assertions/recommendations:

- Repeal the 2011 code and enforce the 1997 code with modifications proposed by CWG for permissible zones, buffering and spacing
- The Markham Case is and remains, precedent binding upon both Washington state and federal courts. This decision approves amortization as a legitimate use of police power.
- The amortization provision in the 1997 code is legal
- CCO claims billboards are worth $75 million

- Billboards lawfully required to be removed in 2007 cannot be legally compensated for without it being an unconstitutional gift of public funds
- The proposed exchange program favors CCO and could result in lawsuits from other billboard companies
- Amendment of regulations could leave the city vulnerable to having to pay compensation for removal of billboards on MAP 21 arterials
- Any new billboards should require fixed term billboard permits of 15-20 years
- The City must enforce removal of illegally installed billboards
- Allowable faces, structures and square footage should not include unlawful signs
- The proposed staff discretion needs to be better defined and limited
- He also listed numerous sections of proposed code with questions to clarify meaning and intent

Commenter: Jill Jensen

Comments: Clear Channel knew that there was an amortization clause on the billboards when they purchased them and so they were not there in good faith and chose to sue the city. She also claimed that there were 2,800 people opposed to the billboard issue. She noted that Rapid City, South Dakota had recently won a lawsuit with a billboard company in federal court. She believes that CCO will not remove nonconforming billboards after the proposed 5-year amortization period.

Commenter: Tricia DeOme, Co-chair of Billboard Community Working Group

Comments: Ms. DeOme agrees with the emphasis to replace pole mounted billboards with wall mounted ones. She does not want to change amortization because of the likely lawsuit and that it may have a negative effect on the city regarding MAP 21. The City should consult legal counsel. The existing regulations (without enforcement of removal) is working (50 signs removed since 2012) through attrition by property owners ending leases, property being redeveloped, some sites were not economically viable to Clear Channel and good faith by Clear Channel (Prairie Line Trail billboard). She recommends keeping the code as is with incentives for more wall signs and believes billboards will continue to be go away if we:

- Maintain the course with current code (and not enforce amortization)
- Continue code enforcement on dilapidated billboards
- Require business licenses for property owners and billboard owners
- Work with property owners (not billboard owners) to remove billboards
- Continue to encourage redevelopment.

Staff Response: Amortization, the legal status of the existing billboards, and the affects of MAP 21 are some of the key legal questions for billboard regulations in Tacoma. City legal staff will be at the October 21st Planning Commission meeting to respond to questions.

Staff would note that the legal case in Rapid City that Ms. Jensen referred to did not deal with amortization, but instead dealt with the viability of regulations for new construction of electronic or digital billboards and sign credits.

Staff has found that some existing billboards may have been installed inconsistently with the regulations in place at the time they were installed. While this issue is not critical to proposed code amendments, it is important for understanding the City's enforcement position. Staff is continuing to research this issue.

A number of the clarifications requested by Mr. Schafer have been incorporated into the revised draft regulations.

With regards to Ms. DeOme's suggestion, while this process has been designed to explore viable alternatives to the existing regulations, staff has continuously acknowledged that maintaining the existing code will always be an option for the City Council.

3. Subject: Billboards are bad for community

Commenter: Jeff Ryan.

Comments: He does not like any billboards and calls them visual pollution.

Commenter: Susan Ryan.

Comments: Too few businesses are benefitting from billboards to justify the imposition on the bulk of the citizens. She wants the City to take a stand and fight to remove the billboards.

Commenter: R.R. Anderson.

Comments: Likens billboards to "psychic pollution" in that they represent waste and decay. Mr. Anderson wants billboards to be located in industrial areas.

Commenter: Julian Ayer.

Comments: She is frustrated by the City's decision a few years ago to go back on most of the sensible billboard regulations that were put into place in the late eighties and nineties. The Commission should recommend regulations that protect the community and outdoor space and not proceed based on fear of Clear Channel suing the City.

Commenter: Deborah Cade

Comments: Supports PC recommendation and 1997 amortization.

Commenter: Jodi Cook

Comments: Stop negotiating with Clear Channel, they will never deal in good faith. She supports amortization and a fight in court to enforce it. Billboards are just ugly.

Commenter: Anita Joy Delight

Comments: There are plenty of alternate advertising media for businesses to use rather than billboards. They are blight on the landscape and we do not need them. The City should force the removal of all billboards.

Commenter: Colleen and Stanley Shaw

Comments: They live off Proctor, just south of Union, and feel assaulted by billboards and signs. They do not want any billboards in the City.

Commenter: Rob and Jill Jensen, Jill was on the CWG representing Scenic Tacoma

Comments: Clear Channel will never be happy and will push to get what they want. Tacoma should retaliate with a lawsuit and be done with it. Clear Channel is in financial trouble and may not honor obligations to move billboards. CCO should pay its fair share of taxes based on the profit they make on billboards. If CCO says they have value for compensation, then this same value should be a basis for taxing them. They do not want pedestrian scale off-site signage, want billboard dispersal to remain at 500 feet, and want wall signs limited to 300 square feet.

Commenter: Bob Kircher

Comments: Opposes large billboards and the proposal to reduce the 500 foot dispersion requirement.

Commenter: Gary Knudson, President, Board of Historic Tacoma

Comments: Supports PC recommendation. He recommends the updating and full implementation of the amortization clause to remove billboards.

Commenter: Jennifer Koenig, lives in 6th Avenue business corridor

Comments: Would like to see enforcement of current code. Billboards block natural views of mountains, trees and water. She prefers wall signs that do not poke up into the sky. She wants to retain the current buffers to public spaces such as parks.

Commenter: Garrett Leque, LG

Comments: Only wants a few billboards to remain. Believes the City has enough money to fight CCO in court since it has millions to spend on a new aquarium. He does not want large billboards.

Commenter: Heather Leque

Comments: Concerned about increases in height limits and reduction of buffer distance from no-billboard zones and sensitive use areas. She wants to protect schools, parks and historic properties from billboards.

Commenter: Terry Lumsden, Attorney with office near 6th and Union

Comments: Clear Channel does not pay its fair share of taxes for the benefit derived from publicly funded infrastructure that benefits their business. The billboard at 6th and Union blocks views from adjacent office buildings. The billboard that was enlarged at 6th and Union was not built to what was portrayed on the permit. Billboards keep commercial properties from being used for their highest and best use. He wants the City Legal Department to disclose the analysis of the case against CCO. He is troubled about settling with CCO instead of fighting them in court. What is the cost of all the billboards over 50-100 years?

Commenter: Marshall McClintock, 700 block of North J St

Comments: Supports amortization to remove billboards and says the Planning Commission proposal is an improvement on the Community Working Group work. Wants to keep the buffer at 500 feet around no-billboard zones.

Commenter: Mark Pinto, N 27th St.

Comments: He opposes all large billboards and would like to see pole mounted billboards removed and limit wall signs to 300 square feet.

Commenter: Marilyn and Michael Sabo

Comments: We do not want enormous billboards in front of churches, schools or within sight of residential neighborhoods.

Commenter: Julie Turner, 817 North J Street

Comments: Supports the PC recommendation and supports retaining the 1997 amortization. Billboards blight our streets and neighborhoods.

Commenter: Alex Webster

Comments: The Council should honor its commitments and start cutting out bad billboards.

Commenter: Skip and Laura Vaughn, 7634 South Fife Street

Comments: Do not want pole mounted billboards and no non-conforming signs should be permitted to remain. Many of the present billboards are along South Tacoma streets due to high traffic volumes. They want them cleaned up. They believe that the City can successfully challenge Clear Channel Outdoor in court.

Staff Response: As noted above, staff continues to explore whether the existing billboards were all installed in accordance with their permits and the codes in effect at the time of their installation.

Staff would note that MetroParks Tacoma, not the City of Tacoma, owns and operates the Point Defiance Zoo and Aquarium.

With regards to those comments regarding the City's legal position, as noted above, City legal staff will be at the next Planning Commission meeting to discuss legal questions.

Other comments noted.

4. Subject: CCO makes leases that are difficult to get out of

Commenter: Jori Adkins, Dome District

Issue: CCO lease agreements with landowners are worded in favor of CCO and are hard to get out of – but she was able to end the leases for two billboards on property she owned. She said that once the billboards were gone, she received comments about how much more visible her buildings were now that the distraction of the billboards were gone.

Staff Response: Comments noted.

5. Subject: Protect future development potential

Commenter: Jori Adkins, Dome District

Comments: Make sure that regulations provide for protection of future development. She would also like to remove the DMU district (south downtown and around the Dome) from zones that would allow billboards since it is meant to be a dense residential district and those residents should be protected from billboards the same as other residential districts.

Staff Response: The DMU District is not simply a “residential” district. It is a dense mixed-use zoning district, very similar to many of the other downtown zones and mixed-use zones that the CWG and Planning Commission have considered as potential new receiving zones.

SUMMARY OF ORAL TESTIMONY

Planning Commission Public Hearing
October 7, 2015

(1) Dale Kelley, Business Owner:

Mr. Kelley commented that as a business owner he was involved in many non-profit organizations. He reported that in December 2014, Rocky Ridge Elementary School applied for a $100,000 grant and approval from voters was required. Clear Channel Outdoor offered pro bono public billboard advertising to help generate the necessary votes. He commented that Clear Channel understood the importance of our kids and their education and were active and supportive participants. He noted that even though the school did not receive the winning votes, it was an important experience for the elementary school, children, business leaders, and other supporters to know that a corporation like Clear Channel had an investment in this major project. He commented that Clear Channel had, through donation of pro bono public service advertising, helped bring the community together by supporting our civic organizations. He added that they are a great advertising vehicle to our economy and allow many local businesses to target their marketing in the different neighborhoods.

(2) Peter Wangoe, Clear Channel Outdoor Advertising:

Mr. Wangoe commented that Clear Channel Outdoor operated the majority of the billboards in Tacoma and that their media is a respected, affordable, and effective means of advertising that is depended upon by many local businesses that contribute to the labor market and the growth of the local economy. He noted that many land owners depend on their sign rent as a significant source of annual income. He reviewed that Clear Channel had donated millions in pro bono advertising to civic organizations and non-profits whose billboard message brings the community together and makes Tacoma a better place to call home. He reported that they operate their business within the letter and intent of the Tacoma sign code, adding that all of their billboards currently in place were legal when built. He commented that Clear Channel had worked as a member of the Billboard Community Working Group to create recommendations for sign ordinance modernizations and that the will of this stakeholder group should be the blueprint for the Commission's recommendations to the City Council. He commented that the recommendations of the Commission's Billboard Task Force were significantly different from the Working Group's recommendations especially with regards to amortization. Mr. Wangoe commented that amortization as a tool to control a non-conforming land use puts all businesses at risk and creates confusion for companies considering upgrades or enhancements. He added that it is a fallacy to believe that the tool could be used to remove all of the billboards in the city over time since the majority of Tacoma's billboards are adjacent to the National Highway System and thereby subject to the provisions of the Federal Highway Beautification Act. He commented that the proposed ordinance takes a punitive approach and would not yield the desired results.

(3) Doug Schafer, Tacoma Central Neighborhood Council:

Mr. Schafer commented that the 1997 ordinance, which required removal of non-conforming billboards, remains lawful. He reviewed that Clear Channel Outdoor had purchased the non-conforming billboards in 2002 and then sued the City when it began to enforce the ordinance. He reviewed that the Billboard Task Force's report included a note that information is needed about the application of 2012 Federal Highway Legislation. He commented that if the 200 billboards become legal, Federal Law will require that the City pay just compensation if removal is enforced. He added that the City must get clarification from Federal and State officials before recklessly repealing the existing code's amortization provision. He noted that Clear Channel would sue if the City enforces its lawful authority to remove illegal billboards, but added that there was no point in having laws if the City would not enforce them. He commented that Clear Channel should not be granted an exclusive franchise and by allowing new billboards through removal of existing illegal billboards. He added that the exchange program could result in lawsuits from other competing sign companies because it unlawfully grants Clear Channel a monopoly. He suggest that any new billboard permits should have fixed terms such as fifteen or twenty years as it would reduce further costs to the City if they must be removed at some point.

(4) Patricia Mannie, Patricia & Co.:

Ms. Mannie reported that she owned a marketing firm and some of her clients are small business owners. She commented that billboards are the most effective marketing for their dollar. She reported that one of her clients, G. Donnalson's Restaurant, had seen their sales double in one month after advertising on four billboards. She commented that it was economical to continue to have billboards and asked Commissioners to consider allowing Clear Channel to continue to be a substantial community partner.

(5) Stephanie Schramm, Schramm Marketing:

Ms. Schramm commented that she handled the marketing and media for 15 to 20 small business owners who cannot afford major media and have to look local to get their advertising done. She commented that billboards are one of the few effective and affordable advertising methods left for small business owners. She hoped that the Commission would consider finding a win-win situation so that the billboards could continue to be available for small business owners.

(6) Jori Adkins, Dome District:

Ms. Adkins reported that they had owned a lease on two billboards above their building and had only made around one thousand dollars each year. She discussed Clear Channel's efforts to negotiate a continuance of the lease and her decision to have the billboards removed. She reported that the language in the lease had made removal of one of the billboards challenging. She commented that billboards drew attention away from the local businesses and buildings.

(7) Jeff Ryan:

Mr. Ryan commented that he was opposed to all billboards and that they were visual pollution. He commented that he would like to see all billboards removed. He reviewed that the issue had a long history and the City had once made billboards illegal in the 1920s.

(8) Jon Ketler:

Mr. Ketler commented that it is easy to think about the billboard discussion in terms of multinational companies like Ackerley. He reported that he is a property owner and owns one of the 17 billboards that were listed as priority for removal. He commented that when their billboard was put up it was a legal billboard and met all of the requirements of the City. He felt that it was unconscionable that the City could decide that they did not like things and then have them removed. He noted that over time things change and some property owners had chosen to remove billboards on their own. He reported that there are hundreds of property owners that benefit from having billboards on their land.

(9) Dale Reed:

Mr. Reed commented that he had been the only property owner at the Billboard Community Working Group. He observed that over the years it had been a polarizing issue between neighborhood groups and sign companies, with property owners rarely mentioned. He added that there were more than 150 property owners with billboards. He commented that they should either leave his property alone or buy it, but they shouldn't steal it. He commented that their billboards were an important asset and were part of what went into developing the property. He reported that they were one of the first owners in the 6th Avenue region to spend money to turn a bare lot into something that added to the community. He discussed how on a road trip he had been surprised to find a Clear Channel sign in Turkey. He wondered if the officials in Tacoma understood how powerful Clear Channel was and how there was no way that they would allow this slippery slope to happen. He commented there was room for the code to change, but retroactively taking property away was the wrong move.

(10) Jill Jensen:

Ms. Jensen reported that she had been part of the Billboard Community Working Group. She commented that while there were over 150 people who own billboards, there were also 2,800 people opposed to the billboard issue. She commented that Clear Channel was not there in good faith as they knew the billboards would have to be removed when they originally bought them, but instead chose to sue the City. She commented that you can fight and win against billboard companies, noting that Rapid City, South Dakota had recently won a lawsuit with a billboard company in federal court. She commented that Clear Channel would not remove the billboards at the end of the five year amortization period and urged the Commissioners to take a stand so that the issue could be resolved.

(11) Susan Ryan:

Ms. Ryan commented that she wanted to know why they were still discussing billboards when previously they were going to be removed. She felt that it did not make sense to try and accommodate a few business owners and Clear Channel. She commented that it seemed like an antiquated method of advertising and many citizens did not want them. She commented that too few businesses were benefiting from it versus the bulk of the citizens. She encouraged Commissioners to be leaders and take a stand now.

Subject: Planning Commission's public comments on proposed billboard ordinance

Planning Commission members,

I am sorry this is so last minute but I wanted to get an ok to say that I am representing the Dome District in these few extra comments about the proposed billboard ordinance.

We want to make sure that whatever is finally proposed does not stop future development of vacant parcels in the downtown, especially the Dome District. We have worked hard over the last several years to prepare the neighborhood for the future TOD that we should be. We are primed and ready for development of housing as the only missing element to fulfilling our destiny as the Transit Oriented District of the Downtown.

That said, we implore you to remove the DMU, Downtown Mixed Use Zone from the list of ones being opened to billboards. Even Wall signs will be the wrong message in a predominantly dense residential district. As it is not allowed in other residential neighborhood it should not be allowed here.

Thank you for your thoughtful time and attention to this very difficult decision.

with respect,

Every day we experience the "psychic pollution" of these crumbling vinyl monstrosities in our neighborhood. As a small business owner I am sickened by the waste and decay these things represent. The Clear Channel monopoly has had over a decade to make money from these billboards and they chose to use that money to sue you personally and everyone else in Tacoma regardless if they care about billboards or not. I am in support of any code that can push the sky spam out of neighborhoods, away from parks, away from schools and into the soulless industrial purgatory where these things belong.

Dear Planning Commissioners,

I grew up in Tacoma and moved back eleven years ago after being away for school. I am now a father of three children and a practicing pediatrician. I am also one of many Tacoma residents that was frustrated by the City's decision a few years ago to go back on most of the sensible billboard regulations that were put into place in the late eighties and nineties. Like all of you, our community and its outdoor spaces matter greatly to me.

I write to express appreciation for the recommendations the Planning Commission made to the Mayor and City Council back in 2011. Encouraging Tacoma leaders to maintain city code limitations on traditional billboards and prohibit digital billboards altogether is in the best interest of our community.

Regarding the new proposed regulations concerning billboards, I ask the Planning Commission to make recommendations in the same spirit of those made in 2011. Clear Channel litigation against our City should not result in land use regulations that go against the will and best interest of the public.

Thanks for the opportunity to provide comments and your work on this important matter.

Stop negotiating with any billboard company. The City Council voted years ago to band them in Tacoma. Billboard companies had, I believe, 10 years to make revenue, and then they were to come down. Instead Clear Channel increased their inventory knowing the position the City of Tacoma had taken. Neither Clear Channel or any other "outdoor advertising" company will ever deal in good faith.

I recently traveled through the Mid-West. Those cities that took obvious pride in their city landscapes, architecture had all the tourist flocking in to enjoy their local commerce. Neighborhoods reflected well taken care of homes, lawns and pedestrians - bicyclist using sidewalks, bike lanes. In other words people were out enjoying their city. Billboards are just ugly. They take away from the optics of what a City like Tacoma has to offer. When signage literally follows the adage of "you can't see the forest for the trees" people will not come. Our businesses will suffer. We lose the opportunity to bring in businesses that want their employees to enjoy a good life. No additional sound or light pollution.

Fight this in court. We say what our City wants to look like. Expressing our right for freedom of speech was never intended by the founding fathers to be on a billboard. Uphold the right that citizens of Tacoma very vocally registered, no billboards.

Subject: Outdoor Billboard Regulation

It has come to my attention that the Planning Commission is seeking public comments on the proposed land use regulations concerning Billboards.

Brain Injury Alliance of Washington serves the state of Washington, including Seattle-Tacoma and the Western Washington community. I would like to share our story on the generous community services that Clear Channel Outdoor has provided to many not-for-profit organizations including Brain Injury Alliance of Washington.

As you may be aware, non-profit organizations have limited marketing budget so we depend on media companies like Clear Channel Outdoor to consider donating pro-bono advertising so that we can continue our work to spread the public awareness of our message and how we can serve our local community.

Outdoor billboards play an important role for organizations like ours. In particular, they have allowed us to make sure our community understand the impact of Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI) and the mantra that "A Concussion = A Brain Injury" Protect Our Youth. This is a serious public health issue for our community. By utilizing billboard advertising, Brain Injury Alliance has helped us to work towards preventing injuries and educating the public on the availability of supports and services for those living with TBI. Our local community has sought out Brain Injury Alliance of Washington for various services when our billboard campaigns were posted.

For a corporation to offer discount or pro-bono billboard space, this proves that they have shown their strong community commitment and to support services that are in need. The public health education awareness campaign has also allowed us to reach out to partner with other community partners – many of them are local businesses.

I am concerned that attempts to limit outdoor advertisements even further would prove harmful to many non-profit organizations in our city.

We have found outdoor advertising to be a valuable marketing tool to get our message out to our community. We noticed an increase when outdoor advertising was used from consumers seeking information about TBI from our website.

Non-profits are already having big challenges to keep their operations viable. I would hate to see our community negatively impacted by additional billboard regulations.

Please allow billboards to continue their local support to non-profits like Brain Injury Alliance of Washington.

Respectfully,

Deborah Crawley

I would like to go on record encouraging the planning commission to think about the value - or lack thereof - of billboards throughout the community and about cleaning up our environment beyond the current restrictions which are intended to protect neighborhoods, historic districts and shoreline areas.

In this age of technology, businesses have abundant venues for prompting their products without posting supersized visual distractions in our communal areas, along our travel routes and elsewhere. In our community I would recommend that we aspire to surround ourselves with sights that inspire rather than advertise. Like the plethora of political signage during (and sometimes after) campaigns, in my perception billboards are a blight on the landscape. We don't need them. Their usefulness is not typically community oriented but rather for the benefit of the advertisers.

Rather than offer an exchange program for currently non-conforming uses, I support simply enforcing removal. At the risk of being perceived as ridiculous, I further recommend that the City of Tacoma planning commission seriously consider the possibility of creating a precedent-setting billboard-free community at some point in Tacoma's progressive future.

Dear Planning Commission Members,

This letter serves as my public comment for the City of Tacoma Planning Commission Billboard Code Amendments. I served as co-chair of the City of Tacoma Billboard Community Working Group and have been involved in the billboard issues in the City of Tacoma since 2010.

I appreciate the time and effort the Planning Commission Task Force has put into the draft code amendments. In general I can support the majority of the substantive changes that are recommended in the draft code. While I do not appreciate billboards in our community, I particularly do not like free standing billboards and I agree with the incentives that the Task Force made to allow wall signs in exchange for free standing billboards.

I am concerned about maintaining the amortization clause and even extending it. I am concerned for two reasons. One; Clear Channel will likely continue to sue (and stated so in their public comment on October 7) if amortization is used as a vehicle for removal of nonconforming billboards. We will just be extending the lawsuit out another three years. Two; I am concerned how changing the amortization will affect the Map 21 ruling associated with Federal designated roads. And if by changing the amortization if the billboards along the Federal designated roads will be subject to just compensation for removal as is required along federal highways. I highly recommend the City of Tacoma obtain legal council to consult on this issue before any changes are made to the code.

Furthermore, the current code is working to remove billboards have been removed under the current code. As of December 2014, 50 billboard faces were removed since 2012 for the following reasons:

- property owners no longer want the billboards on their property (example Jori Adkins property);
- the property was redeveloped and new onsite pole signage was placed requiring the billboard to be removed (example Ace Hardware at South 12th and Sprague);
- Clear Channel did not find the billboard economically viable; or
- Good faith by Clear Channel (Prairie Line Trail billboard)

An additional 31 billboard faces were removed in accordance with the 2012 standstill agreement. In comparison to the 2010 original settlement agreement required removal of 54 billboards in exchange for 10 digital billboards. It appears the current code has removed just about as many static billboards for reasons described above at the original settlement agreement without the digital billboards in the first two years.

Tricia DeOme – City of Tacoma Planning Commission Public Comment on Billboard Code Amendments

While it would be acceptable to change the code to allow more incentive for wall signs, I believe keeping the code as is will continue to reduce billboards in Tacoma if we:

- maintain the course/current code
- continue code enforcement on dilapidated billboards
- start requiring business licenses for the property owners and the billboard owners
- work with property owners (not billboard owners) to remove billboards
- continue to encourage redevelopment

I understand the City of Tacoma would like to reduce the number of billboards and end the lawsuit with Clear Channel. Based on my experience with Clear Channel to date, the only way to end the lawsuit will be either to win the lawsuit or not enforce removal of the billboards.

Sincerely,

Tricia DeOme

My husband and I would like to go on record to say that we don't want ANY billboards in residential areas of the city. Which pretty much means the city. So anything you can do to limit the number is very much appreciated. We live off Proctor, three blocks south of Union and feel assaulted by billboards and signs that are too large and beyond ugly at every turn.

Thank you,

Outdoor advertising has been an essential element in the advertising I have created for more than 30 years for many small, local businesses such as LeRoy Jewelers, Taylor-Thomason Insurance and more. It was generally the most effective and efficient medium available. It allows local companies to compete with larger regional and national firms. Taking away billboards will harm local businesses that use the medium. I assume we all want our companies to remain competitive.

I have also been concerned that the efforts to eliminate the billboards demonstrate that the City is not as business-friendly as it wishes to be perceived. I want our City to be as competitive at attracting and holding on to business as possible.

Outdoor billboard advertising has been a critical element for increasing local support for local non-for-profit organizations, often with the support of the outdoor advertising company. And I appreciate that the billboards are standardized and regulated, unlike the signage and advertising that are placed on and around businesses.

Please allow billboards to continue to be able to support our local businesses, the City of Tacoma's lifeblood.

Sincerely,

Dear Planning Commission Members,

We thank you for your hard work to develop a plan for billboards in our city. Trying to create a feasible approach to satisfy the needs of all concerned is a difficult task to be sure. Jill participated in the Community Working Group on behalf of Scenic Tacoma, so is familiar with the conversations and ideas that resulted from that committee.

In the beginning, the anti-digital billboard group of over 2800 petition signers offered on numerous occasions to provide the help and knowledge of 3 U.S. attorneys who have successfully battled against the outdoor advertising giants across the U.S. and won. But the city would not consider them and instead chose an Issaquah firm who had zero experience in fighting this issue.

It is important to note that Rapid City, South Dakota has just won a 4 year lawsuit against Lamar Outdoor advertising – it can be done!

There are many questions and comments we have regarding the proposed regulations. Here are a few:

- 1. Clear Channel is NOT a trustworthy corporation who will abide by yet another set of city regulations. If they do not get what they perceive they deserve, Clear Channel “works” with cities via protracted lawsuits – period. It has and is happening all across America. Tacoma needs to realize this is how they do business and match their approach.
- 2. Clear Channel is in financial trouble (see two timely articles attached). What does this mean for Tacoma? What happens if they erect new signs without removing non-conforming signs first? If they go bankrupt or do not have funds appropriated for old and new sign removal, Tacoma could well be faced with paying for their removal and disposal. This would be a huge expense.
- 3. Clear Channel does not begin to pay to cities their fair share of taxes for value earned. Cities spend a sizable amount of employee time and taxpayer dollars attempting to develop codes and regulate signs – Tacoma certainly has. It is unfair they pay such low costs to operate in our city. Perhaps one idea is to have Clear Channel declare the current ‘value’ of each billboard within Tacoma for future amortization purposes then tax them accordingly.

4. What happens at the end of the newly proposed 3 and 5 year amortization periods when Clear Channel refuses to remove the signs? What stops them from filing yet another lawsuit? We need protection from this problem or it will never be resolved (unless Tacoma takes legal action).
5. What happens when other billboard companies sue Tacoma for not being allowed to 'do' business in our city? Has this problem been addressed?
6. Outdoor advertisers want to blanket more than just walls with advertising. Bus tops, buses, feather signs, park benches, school lockers (yes, this is already happening in public schools). We need regulations to stop any/all pedestrian level signs from advertisers.
7. What fees will the city be forced to pay if a sign must be relocated due to road widening or other unforeseen circumstances? St Paul/Minneapolis was forced to pay over $4.300,000 to outdoor advertisers when construction projects required the removal of 4 conventional and 1 digital billboard because this was its projected value. How will Tacoma prevent this from happening?
8. Sign spacing should not be reduced from 500' to 250'. If Tacoma's stated objective is to reduce the number of billboards and visual blight, spacing requirements should be 300' at a minimum.
9. Do NOT permit wall signs to be larger than 300' sq. ft. Once you permit a staff person to make such a decision, other locations will be called into question. Overseeing the different allowances has been a nightmare for cities when 'illegal' non-conforming signs are erected. Keep the rules consistent.

Bottom line, Clear Channel will never be happy – they even said so at the conclusion of their address to your commission meeting. They will push until they get what they want – they are the ultimate playground bullies.

Our city needs to take a stand to stop this once and for all. If we had played their game and retaliated with a lawsuit like Rapid City did 4 years ago, we'd be done with this - for good. It angers us when we see yet more city and volunteer time wasted on something which will never be resolved without legal action.

Thank you for your efforts – they are sincerely appreciated.

Clear Channel Outdoor: Poor Fundamentals At An Optimistic Price

Sep. 20, 2015 11:53 PM ET | About: Clear Channel Outdoor Holdings, Inc. \(CCO\) by: Doyle Publishing Ltd.

Summary

CCO's low ROA and ROE + the relatively high rate of growth of debt + low free cash flow + low profits and declining revenue = a toxic mixture.

At a P/E of 797 and a forward P/E of 159.4, CCO's forecasted one-year earnings growth rate sits at a high 400%.

Optimistic investors are willing to pay a very high premium for CCO's growth. We believe that optimism is misplaced.

Clear Channel Outdoor Holdings \(CCO\) is an advertising company with about 640,000 advertising displays in over 30 countries. Think the ads you see on billboards, digital screens, bus shelters, as well as in airports, shopping malls, and so on.

CCO has lost about ~-25% of its stock price in the last five years. In this article, we examine whether investors' caution is warranted and investors should continue to steer clear.

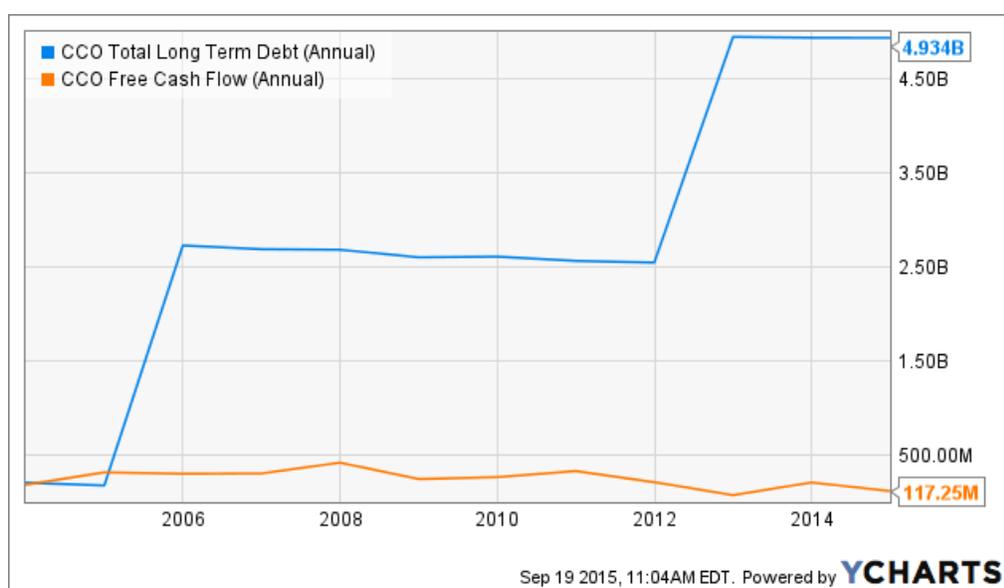

Looking Back

CCO, with its large revenue base ($2.88B) is failing to turn that into profit for shareholders ($4.13M); worse, both are on the decline. Over the last five years CCO's revenue has declined - 3.29% on a TTM basis, while its net income has declined even steeper, at -83.2%. This calls the efficiency of the sales activities at CCO into question.

As Investopedia suggests:

Anybody can make a profit by throwing a ton of money at a problem, but very few managers excel at making large profits with little investment.

CCO is certainly not one of those companies that excel at generating large profits from little investment. CCO's ROA (0.07%), ROE (-1.23%), and profit margin (0.14%) are razor-thin, implying that CCO is struggling to generate returns on its assets, equity, and operations. It seems that the providers of CCO's capital are earning less than they could if they had put their capital in a high-interest bank account (a roughly ~1.3% return). We fear that at some point, this fact will become apparent to providers of capital, which calls into question CCO's continued ability to access capital at favorable rates. And that's not good for CCO, as it has a lot of debt.

Source: YCharts

In our opinion, this amount of debt isn't sustainable; especially if interest rates rise. As such, we consider CCO's low ROA and ROE + the relatively high rate of growth of debt + low free cash flow + low profits and declining revenue to be a toxic mixture. Taken alone they are each a reason to avoid the stock; combined they may represent a very high level of risk to shareholders. Yet at a P/E of ~797, investors are willing to pay a very high premium for CCO's growth. But how will that affect CCO shareholders going forward?

Looking Forward

One of the ways we judge whether a stock is fairly priced is to compare the current and the forward P/E multiples; if the forward P/E is too low, that may be a sign that the market is too optimistic about the company's immediate future.

In the case of CCO, we fear that optimistic investors may be in for a painful surprise. At a P/E of 797 and a forward P/E of 159.4, CCO's forecasted one-year earnings growth rate sits at a high 400%.

We believe that's simply too optimistic for this company. For CCO investors, what's the best case scenario? CCO achieves this high growth forecast; and shares stay flat, because that rate of growth is already built into price. For everything short of the best-case scenario, investors may bear the brunt of a disappointed market, and feel the pain as shares fall precipitously.

Finally, this growth rate seems especially troublesome for a company that's disappointed the last two/four quarters.

Earnings History	Sep 14	Dec 14	Mar 15	Jun 15
EPS Est	-0.01	0.07	-0.14	0.02
EPS Actual	-0.02	0.13	-0.09	0.00
Difference	-0.01	0.06	0.05	-0.02
Surprise %	-100.00%	85.70%	35.70%	-100.00%

Source: Yahoo Finance

Conclusion

We consider CCO's low ROA and ROE + the relatively high rate of growth of debt + low free cash flow + low profits and declining revenue to be a toxic mixture. Taken alone, each of these are reasons to be wary of the stock; taken together, they may represent a very high level of risk to shareholders. This risk is compounded by the optimism built into CCO's share price. At a P/E of ~797, investors are willing to pay a very high premium for CCO's growth, and are forecasting what, in our opinion, is an overly optimistic earnings growth rate of 400% over the next year. We believe that optimism is misplaced, and investors would do well to avoid Clear Channel Outdoor.

Re: Billboards

Dear Chairperson Beale and Commissioners:

The Board of Historic Tacoma supports the adoption of the recently enumerated recommendations of the Planning Commission Task Force which was empaneled to review and complete the work of the Billboard Community Working Group. The Task Force worked diligently and ably articulated a number of necessary amendments to the work of the Community Working Group. The work of the Task Force is too extensive to adequately paraphrase here, but Historic Tacoma considers the sum of their work the minimum regulation to be applied to billboards in Tacoma.

Going forward, Historic Tacoma also recommends the updating and full implementation of the heretofore un-applied amortization clause in the original ordinance which will do justice to the City and its neighborhoods by citing current operators' actual acquisition costs and time of service for any and all billboard structures to come under scrutiny of the code.

Thank you for your thoughtful work on this difficult and complex topic.

Very Truly Yours,

We would prefer:

- To NOT see billboards that block our beautiful natural views - of mountains, trees and water
- If we had to choose, we would prefer to see advertisements on the sides of buildings, rather than poking out of a modest skyline
- We would NOT like to see a reduction in the 'buffer zone' between billboards and public spaces such as parks - we want as much space as possible between our 'green', our schools and our commerce...

Thank you,
Jennifer Koenig and family

Dear Mr. Harrington,

It is so taxing for citizens to have to repeatedly express our dismay at Clear Channel. A few signs are fine, but what Clear Channel is planning is worth a legal battle. If Tacoma is going to spend $48.5 million on an aquarium, surely there must be funding somewhere to combat Clear Channel's bad faith dealings, in order to avoid having Tacoma come to look like Fife or Las Vegas.

Please oppose the use of large billboard blight in otherwise beautiful Tacoma.

Thank you,

Dear Mr. Harrington,

Can you imagine this landscape without the huge Clear Channel obstruction?

As we work to make Tacoma a more walkable city, I urge you to listen to citizen voices calling to enforce billboard regulations already in place rather than modifying code and bending to the will of Clear Channel. Specifically, I am concerned about possible increases in height limits and reduction of the buffer distance from no-billboard zones and sensitive use areas (such as schools, parks, historic properties).

Please give Tacoma residents the opportunity to walk through our parks and neighborhoods without these visual bombardments. I ask that you uphold the decisions and interests of our community instead of making more concessions to corporate interests.

Thank you,

Subject: Outdoor Billboard Regulation

I am unable to attend tonight's public hearing, but I wanted to send you comments on the proposed land use regulations concerning Billboards.

As a nonprofit organization, we are dedicated to strengthening career and life skills of low income women, and connecting businesses to future employees. Over the last 33 years, we have helped improve the lives of mothers, children and families in Tacoma.

Clear Channel Outdoor has been a wonderful community partner to Courage360. They have donated pro-bono billboard inventory so that we could create an impact with our public awareness message "Guiding Careers. Transforming Communities." With their support, our clients are able to reach economic independence; local employers are hiring our clients so that they can share their learned skills in the workplace and in our local community.

We are limited in our marketing budget so when corporations like Clear Channel Outdoor partners with us, they help reach and aid the community we serve. The impact of the billboards has given hope and spirit to women who are down on their luck, and they do not know where to go.

As our local economy is finally showing signs of improving, I would hate to see non-profit organizations that depend on assistance from organizations like Clear Channel Outdoor for marketing their message negatively impacted by additional billboard regulations. Our clients that are graduating from our programs are now working in the workforce. Consequently, Courage360 has helped the Tacoma economy by preventing homelessness and making sure our clients has skills to remain off welfare and maintain their independence.

Please allow billboards to continue to be able to support our local non-profit organizations.

Re: Billboards

Dear Planning Commission:

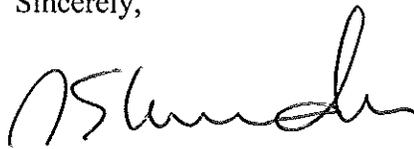

I was unable to attend the public meeting Wednesday. I have spoken to the Tacoma City Council on this matter as well as submitted some written materials, which I have since thrown away. This letter will attempt to summarize the points I think are relevant to this discussion, in no particular order.

- 1) It is troubling to me that the billboards' lot owners pay no taxes for the billboards on their lot. I've been told, in separate letters from the City Legal Department, that the billboards are not considered "real property", nor are their considered "personal property", and I am sure the money from Clear Channel to the lot owners does not pass through the lot owners' B & O taxes. So basically, while the rest of us taxpayers pay money to maintain roads, streets, sidewalks, on which these billboards attract customers, the owners of the lots pay no taxes to help maintain road ways, streets, and sidewalks.
- 2) I own a building and a business at the corner of 6th and Union, across from the Hogan building. Next to me is a massive billboard, rusting on the backside, an eyesore to my clients, and troubling to anyone wishing to view the sky or the Olympics. If you go to the third floor of the Hogan building and look to the Northwest, the beautiful view of the Olympics are partially obscured by this ugly billboard. This billboard is probably within a 100 ft. of homes, which I always thought was illegal.
- 3) I have documentation from the City of Tacoma Planning and Building Commissions that show this billboard was initially perhaps 10 ft. by 20 ft. in size viewing perpendicular to 6th Avenue between my building and the old wooden structure next door (see exhibit #1). They got a permit to upgrade it. The requested increase in size was from 576 sq. ft. to 672 sq. ft in size (see exhibit #2). The permit drawing shows a slightly larger billboard (see exhibit #3). What has been erected a massive; I'm guessing 20 ft. high and 60-70 ft. long (see exhibit #4). I submit what was built was not approved by the City of Tacoma and for that reason that billboard should be brought down.

- 4) Look at the lots where the billboards are on, for instance on 6th Avenue. Look at the businesses being conducted on these lots. Clear Channel must have sought out under-developed sites to offer the lot owners' money to erect the billboard. For instance on 6th Avenue, the businesses below the billboards are selling used lawn mowers, another is selling used tires, and the one next to me is an accounting office as well as a used records store in a wooden building perhaps 100 years old. These three lots will never be developed and improved. What incentive does the lot owner have to sell if he is getting $2,000-3,000.00 a month, forever? If the City accepts the fact that there will be pockets of under-developed property throughout the City, that is unfortunate. It is not the best and highest use of our property.
- 5) I like the idea of "advertising" out existence of billboards. It's an idea I've commented opinion in earlier letters and presentations.
- 6) Finally, I am troubled that the Legal Department of the City of Tacoma has not shared with the public the analysis of the case against Clear Channel. I understand most of that is confidential; however, we are not the first City to litigate against Clear Channel. Why cannot we learn of other cities' success rate on eliminating billboards. I am troubled that there is a strong attitude of settling with Clear Channel, as opposed to going through a trial. What is the worst case scenario of losing a trial?
- 7) We have never been told the cost of buying out all these billboards over 50-100 years. Somebody should estimate, for the taxpayers, what that cost is. It maybe agreeable to the majority of people.

Sincerely,

Terry E. Lumsden

Subject: Proposed Land Use Regulations concerning Billboards

Dear Commissioners,

For almost 30 years, various Planning Commissions and City Councils in Tacoma have worked to remove the billboard blight from our city. As early as 1923 the city recognized billboards as incompatible with its urban form and banned them. And yet that fight continues today. Consequently, I still support the 1997 regulations that required the removal of all non-conforming billboard structures after 10 years. I see little reason to change those regulations.

The current proposal is much better than what emerged from the Community Working Group. The provision of credits to incentivize the relocation of pole-mounted signs in favor of wall signs is innovative. However, it is unlikely to motivate an intransigent owner like ClearChannel. Moreover, I see little reason to reduce buffer distances from no-billboard zones. I would urge the Commission to keep the current buffer distance of 500 ft.

Finally, I would urge the Commission to maintain the current amortization program from 1997. I believe this is a critical part of the hard work that began in 1985 and has been repeatedly supported since that time. The willful disregard of the city's ability to make and enforce land use regulations cannot be rewarded or allowed to stand.

Subject: Billboard Regulations Change

Dear Mr. Harrington,

I am a retired Professional Engineer with a specialty in RADAR system design. I am experienced in propagation of electromagnetic waves and the creation of electromagnetic interference by electrical devices. In the previous discussions on billboards I provided written testimony against electronic billboards because of their potential for harmful interference with radio and Television sets in nearby homes. There is a need for design requirements on electronic billboards to mandate careful shielding for the protection of other electronic devices in the near vicinity. The radiated noise decreases by the square of the distance from the noise source.

The Federal Communications Commission does have some requirements but those are very weak with respect to locations outside of manufacturing zones. I believe my most important input on this proposal, since I do not have the text of the Regulations, is to caution you with respect to mounting signs on buildings. Those signs should probably be limited to non-electronic billboards because a large electronic billboard poorly shielded might interfere with all the computers in the building, as well a cell phones and other electronic devices. Recognize that this possible problem can be solved in the design of a billboard, but the shielding requirements must be specified in order to ensure the billboard is properly constructed to minimize the electromagnetic noise radiated from the sign.

I know that corporations are now people too, but Clear Channel and the rest of the billboard purveyors should not be able to put their enormous billboards in front of churches, across from schools, or within site of our residential neighborhoods. The one in particular that does all three is the one at 6th & Sprague. Maybe we should boycott the businesses that continue to advertise on these unsightly things!

They will continue to threaten to sue until we all give up or they get their own way. Please represent the citizens of Tacoma, not these profit oriented businesses that have no regard for our/their community's aesthetics or safety.

Thank you!

Re: My Comments on Proposed Billboard Regulation in Public Review Document for Public Hearing on October 7, 2015.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I write as a Tacoma resident and lawyer who has, because of my participation in Tacoma Central Neighborhood Council, TCNC, (now its chair) been a close observer since December 2010 of the developments concerning Tacoma's billboard regulations. In 2011, I was quite active with many other residents in opposing the billboard code changes proposed by our city leaders' 2010 Settlement Agreement with Clear Channel Outdoor (CCO) that would have allowed bulletin size (14 ft by 48 ft) electronic digital billboards along principal and minor arterials in Tacoma. I was a member of the Community Working Group (CWG) formed in late 2014 and assigned by the City Manager to propose billboard regulation approaches as alternatives to our current code. The CWG met for ten two-hour sessions and found some common ground among its philosophically opposed members.

As the webmaster of TCNC's website, <http://cnc-tacoma.com>, beginning in 2011 I have posted on that website a great number of public documents relevant to the City's history of billboard regulations, its disputes with CCO, and applicable federal and state law concerning the regulation of billboards. Documents relating to the 2011 proposals, including the relevant documents from CCO's 2007 lawsuit against Tacoma that was essentially dormant for three years while the parties negotiated a settlement, are linked at <http://cnc-tacoma.com/past-projects/31-proposed-electronic-billboards> ("Webpage-1"). Relevant documents from the City's 2011 lawsuit seeking a declaratory judgment about the 2010 Settlement Agreement are linked at <http://cnc-tacoma.com/past-projects/53-billboard-litigation-round-two> ("Webpage-2"). A collection of Tacoma's most relevant ordinances regulating billboards and summary of recent events is at <http://cnc-tacoma.com/new-a-pending/billboards>. ("Webpage-3"). Lastly, a collection of my messages, legal memoranda, and supporting documents to the facilitator and members of the CWG addressing various issues is available at <http://cnc-tacoma.com/new-a-pending/97-2014-15-cwg-messages> ("Webpage-4").

I sought in my testimony at your public hearing to address some key points, but the three-minute limitation forced me to edit my prepared script. Attached as Enclosure 1 is that script.

Legality of Amortization Provisions. The 1997 ordinance’s amortization provision that require the removal, without compensation, of all nonconforming signs by August 2007 was lawful then and remains lawful. Attached as Enclosure 2 is my memorandum of January 21, 2015, to the CWG members describing Washington State Supreme Court and U.S. Supreme Court cases, Government Accountability Office reports, and a 2007 law journal article, all of which demonstrate that the 1997 amortization provision was and remains lawful. The full texts of those documents are included in several other messages that are also downloadable from Webpage-4.

Asserted Value of CCO’s Billboards. On June 21, 2007, CCO’s lawyer sent a threatening letter to City staffer John Harrington asserting that CCO was entitled to be paid the value of its billboards that were subject to the 1997 amortization provision. He wrote, “the total payment required will be in a range of $50,000,000 to $60,000,000.” And a News Tribune article on September 23, 2011, reported that CCO claims the fair market value of its Tacoma billboards exceed $75 million. Notwithstanding the legality of the 1997 amortization provision—that offered no compensation for nonconforming billboards—the City’s 2010 Settlement Agreement included a paragraph stating that “the City will compensate Clear Channel for the fair market value” of any billboards that it ever requires it to remove.

Unconstitutional Gift to CCO; Conflicted City Lawyers. I noted on page 4 of my memorandum (Enclosure 2) that when the City sued CCO in 2011 challenging the validity of the 2010 Settlement Agreement, the City’s hired lawyers appeared to have conflicting interests, since they apparently had advised City leaders to approve that agreement. I wrote, “Those lawyers made five arguments, but did not raise a number of other good arguments because doing so would have implicated the quality of their own previous work concerning the Settlement Agreement.” The most obvious argument that those lawyers declined to make (but that still could be asserted by lawyers without conflicting interests) is that because CCO’s billboards were lawfully required to be removed in 2007, any voluntary payment for them by the City would be an unconstitutional gift of public funds. That point was made, upon similar facts, by the Washington State Supreme Court in a 1979 case between Seattle and Ackerley (CCO’s predecessor). Ackerley argued that a state statute, RCW 47.42.107, enacted two years after it was required to remove certain billboards should be interpreted to require Seattle to compensate it for them. The court held that such an interpretation would cause an unconstitutional gift of public funds, explaining as follows:

“We agree with the City, however, that the interpretation of the statute applied by the trial court is too broad. In holding the statute’s provisions applicable to signs already subject to immediate removal by the City, in the exercise of its police power and without compensation, the interpretation runs afoul of Article 8, § 5 of the state constitution which prohibits the state or any municipality from giving a gift of public funds.

Article 8, § 5 prohibits the state or any subdivision thereof from making a gratuitous expenditure of public funds to any corporation or individual, even if the expenditure is made to achieve a laudable public purpose. [Citations omitted.] A gratuitous expenditure is one for which the public entity neither expects nor receives consideration. [Citations omitted.] Such would be the case here if the provisions of RCW 47.42.107 were to be applied to respondents.

Of key importance in this regard is the fact that, at the time RCW 47.42.107 was enacted respondents' signs had already been subject to immediate removal without compensation under the City's exercise of its police power for more than 2 years. Only the fact that respondents had initiated litigation and postponed final determination of the matter for more than 2 years kept the signs in existence as late as 1977, when the legislation was passed. The City had by that time taken all steps necessary to terminate the signs, and had a right to do so without compensating the owners. The legislature could not then give new life to the signs and require compensation for their removal without requiring the City to make a gratuitous expenditure of public funds."

Ackerley Communications v. City of Seattle, 92 Wash. 2d 905, 917-18, 602 P.2d 1177, 1185-86 (1979). This opinion is linked at the foot of Webpage-1.

I have stressed this unconstitutional gift issue, and provided copies of appellate case briefs concerning this issue, and the now conflicting interests of the City's lawyers in messages the City's lawyers, the City Manager, and City Council members. One such attempt to get their attention is my email message of February 28, 2012, attached as Enclosure 3.

Exchange Program Favors CCO, Invites Challenge by Competitors. Because CCO owns very nearly all the (illegal) billboards in Tacoma, your proposal that new conforming billboards may only be permitted in exchange for the removal of illegal billboards effectively bars competing billboard companies from obtaining permits to install conforming billboards. It is apparent from their website and their billboards along River Road that Total Outdoor (see <http://www.totaloutdoor.com/home/markets>) seeks to expand into the Pierce County market. The favorable billboard regulations that CCO negotiated in 2006 with the City of Los Angeles were challenged in 2008 by competing billboard companies and ruled invalid. Resulting litigation lasted seven years, (Summit Media LLC v. City of Los Angeles 211 Cal.App.4th 921 (2012); Summit Media LLC v. City of Los Angeles, 192 Cal.Rptr.3d 662 (2015), 2015 WL 5227566. There is no good reason to grant CCO an exclusive right to have billboards in Tacoma.

Application of MAP-21 to Tacoma's Billboards. Your Planning Commission's billboards committee's report last month included a statement at the end that "Further information is needed about the effects of "MAP 21" applicability to arterial streets and the off-premises signs located along those streets." Yet your proposal is being put forward recklessly without any such information about the effects of that new federal legislation.

The 2012 federal act referred to as MAP-21 is the “Moving Ahead for Progress in the 21st Century Act,” Public Law 112-141 enacted 7/6/2012, effective 10/1/2012. As a measure to improve our nation’s infrastructure, it included “principal arterials” in the National Highway System (NHS) to permit federal funding. The 1965 Highway Beautification Act required states to remove billboards within 660 feet of national highways/interstates, and provided “just compensation” for sign owners if that law required removal of their signs (75% was to be paid by federal funds). Noncompliant states would forfeit 10% of their federal highway funds. But federal funds for sign removal dried up, and court cases (such as WA supreme court's 1968 Markham ruling, affirmed by US Supreme Court in 1969) allowed states and cities to exercise their police power (e.g., zoning laws) to force removal of signs without “just compensation” after a reasonable amortization period. So in 1978, the billboard lobby (powerful!) persuaded Congress to amend federal law to require “just compensation” for removal of any sign on the NHS regardless of the reason. State law (RCW Ch. 47.42) implements that federal law so our state won’t lose 10% of its federal highway funds.

Prior to Oct. 1, 2012, Tacoma had only 38 (perhaps 35) billboard faces that had been properly permitted on the NHS, all along Highway 7 (Pacific Ave.) south of 46th, to which the “just compensation” provision appears to have applied. But MAP-21 includes all of Tacoma's “principal arterials” in the NHS on 10/1/2012. City planner John Harrington maintains an Excel database on Tacoma's 311 billboard faces (he provided it to me in late August). He has identified that 238 of those billboard faces are on “principal arterials,” including the 38 or 35 that are along Pacific Ave. south of 46th.

I fear that if our City Council repeals the existing code’s billboard amortization provision under which substantially all of CCO’s billboards have been illegal since 2007 or early 2012, then CCO will assert that under your proposed new regulations those billboards will be reclassified as “legal nonconforming” for another three or five years, thereby bringing them under the federal and state laws requiring Tacoma to then pay “just compensation” for their removal. Attached as Enclosure 4 is my recent correspondence with officials of the U.S. Dept. of Transportation, Federal Highway Administration, seeking its position concerning what will be the effect under MAP-21 of your proposed regulations of CCO’s now illegal billboards.

If City leaders charge recklessly forward to enact your proposed billboard regulations, they could be encumbering Tacoma with costs of perhaps $100 million if it ever actually enforces the removal of CCO’s illegal billboards. The likely consequence is that they will never come down.

Suggest Fixed-Term Billboard Permits. Billboards now are commonly appraised, whenever payment for them is required in a condemnation or code enforcement action, based upon their projected advertising revenue during their anticipated remaining life. Land owners who lease space for billboard generally do so with fixed-term leases, and if they choose not to renew the lease at its expiration the billboard must be removed. Since it is always possible that taxpayer funds might be compelled to pay for the removal of a billboard (e.g., for roadway widening, public transit corridors, etc.), it is prudent that billboard permits have a fixed term. The appraised value of a billboard nearing the end of its lease or permit should be much less than one with a perpetual lease/easement or permit.

Enforcement of the Removal of Illegally Installed Billboards. Your billboard task force's report states, near the end, that "Prior to any relocation of signs, all illegal signs must be removed." It appears to me that quite a number of the 311 billboard faces were illegally installed based upon applicable code language and roadway facts at the time of their installation. Mr. Harrington has recognized that some of the billboard structure are in or encroaching with the City's right of ways. It does not appear to me that the City has undertaken a careful examination to identify those billboard faces that were illegally installed. Such an examination should be made, and all such illegally installed billboard should be removed now.

Assorted Drafting Comments: The following are brief comments and questions relating to specific sections of the proposed regulation:

523.A.1: The number of faces and square footage should not include the "unlawful signs" that have never been legal (e.g., erected in improper zones or in ROWs, without permits, without required backing, exceeding height limits, within buffer or dispersal zones).

523.C.3 and .D.1.c.: Provisions such as this granting unfettered discretion to city official are generally ruled to be invalid.

523.D.1.a. and b.: does "residential" include DR, WR, RCX, NRX, and URX, or only the R-n districts? Compare 523.H.1.a. and b.

523.E.3.1 to .5: do't these apply only to freestanding billboards?

523.E.3: explain what is meant by offset and over-cantilevered (must be directly above the base of the support structure).

523.G.1: 500 feet from any other freestanding billboard, not just from another >300 sq.ft. billboard.

523.G.2: 300 feet from any other freestanding billboard.

523.H.1.h: This unfettered discretion as to what is a "historically significant structure" is likely invalid.

523.I.2: consider including a cross-reference to TMC re tree pruning permits.

523.L.1.a. All billboards within the listed districts are nonconforming and must be removed within 3 years. They cannot be made conforming because they are not allowed in those districts.

Amend TMC 13.06.700.S: Sign, unlawful. Any sign which was erected in violation of any applicable ordinance or code governing such erection or construction at the time of its erection, which sign has never been in conformance with all applicable ordinances or codes [add: or which exists contrary a lawful requirement (e.g, ordinance or CUP covenant) that it be removed.]

TMC 13.06.700.S defines “Sign, wall” is including as sign “attached to or erected against” the wall of a building. Is a post sign that is erected against a wall as wall sign? Is a billboard that is attached to a wall by also supported by a pole a “wall sign” or is it not?

TMC 13.06.521.E.4 and .6 state special rules for wall signs that appear to include signs extending over walkways and “architectural blade” signs. Do those apply to wall billboards?

Thank you for considering my comments.

Very truly yours,

(Due to the 3-minute limit imposed at the hearing, the first 2 paragraphs were only partly read and the last paragraph was not read.)

The 1997 ordinance that required the removal in 2007 of nonconforming billboards without compensation was then and remains lawful under WA supreme court and US supreme court precedent. Clear Channel bought the Tacoma billboards in 2002 and 2003, then sued the City in 2007 when the City began to enforce the ordinance. It is misleading to claim that the City has been in litigation for 8 years. That lawsuit was dormant for 3 years while the parties negotiated and reached a proposed settlement that gave Clear Channel the digital billboards that what it wanted and the City's agreement to pay Clear Channel for all future removals of its billboards. I contend that agreement to pay for billboards is void as an unconstitutional gift of taxpayer funds.

In August 2011 the City sued Clear Channel concerning its reckless 2010 settlement agreement, but the parties dismissed that lawsuit 12 months later with an agreement to continue negotiating. So there's not been 8 years of litigation, simply 8 years of negotiations while Clear Channel collects revenue from its illegal billboards.

Your 4-member billboard committee's report last month states at the end that information is needed about the application of the 2012 federal highways legislation to the billboards in Tacoma. As I have shared with you, it appears that if the City Council repeals the current billboard amortization code provision, then Clear Channel's 200 now-illegal billboard faces along our principal arterials will become re-classified as legal billboards and federal law then will require the City to pay "just compensation" for them if it enforces their removal 3 to 5 years from now. The City must get clarification from federal and state officials before recklessly repealing the existing code's amortization provision.

The staff analysis report that you received for today's hearing concludes that any amortization provision will lead to further litigation. I agree. Clear Channel will sue whenever the City exercises its lawful authority to force it to remove its illegal billboards. But if the City won't enforce its laws, why even have laws? At some point, the City will have to actually litigate against Clear Channel, hopefully represented by competent lawyers. Better now than 3 or 5 years from now.

I'm not opposed to all billboards. We should allow any company to install them, with appropriate restrictions, in commercial and industrial zones. We should not give Clear Channel an exclusive franchise by allowing new conforming billboard only in exchange for the removal of illegal billboards. I fear the proposed exchange program will lead to the City being sued by competing sign companies, such as Total Outdoor or Lamar, because the exchange program unlawfully grants Clear Channel a monopoly.

Land owners who allow billboards on their property normally have fixed-term leases. Any new billboard permits issued by the City also should have fixed terms, such as 15 to 20 years. Other cities do this. Signs permitted for a fixed term will reduce future costs to our City if they must be removed at some point.

Your billboard committee's report recommends that all illegally installed billboards must be removed before any new permits are issued. The City staff has not carefully examined historical facts to identify illegally installed billboards, but many billboards were illegally installed. That should be addressed now.

MEMORANDUM

To: Tacoma Billboards Community Working Group Members and Moderator
From: Doug Schafer, CWG Member (Central Neighborhood Council; lawyer)
Date: January 21, 2015
Subject: Homework on Question 3: How Do We Get There From Here?

1. My Alternative Regulatory Approach to Billboards

Consistent with the CWG's mission, I proposed that the City substantially repeal its punitive 2011 billboard ordinance and absolutely enforce its quite reasonable 1997 billboard ordinance, with modest modifications as we've been discussing concerning permissible zones, buffering, and spacing. Under such a proposal, any billboard company (e.g., Clear Channel, Lamar, CBS, Total) then could construct new conforming signs within the permissible zones.

2. False Premise Underlying Any Exchange Proposal

Our moderator's suggestion that we propose "exchange mechanisms" whereby Clear Channel Outdoor (CCO) would remove some of its unlawful billboards only if it is allowed to construct new oversized bulletin billboards in its "high priority zones" rests upon what I believe to be a false premise—that CCO has a right to retain its unlawful billboards. And since CCO owns all but a few of the billboards in Tacoma, an "exchange mechanism" would continue CCO's monopoly by preventing other billboard companies from entering the Tacoma market since they would have no unlawful billboards to offer in exchange.

The false premise (per page 2 of our moderator's Background sheet for Question 3) is the implicit acceptance of CCO mistaken claim that forced removal of nonconforming billboards after an amortization period (as in the 1997 ordinance) without compensation is an impermissible taking of property. For nearly 50 years, our Washington State and Federal courts have consistently rejected this claim, as explained below. Rulings in other states based on their state constitutions are not relevant.

Our City Council is now proposing to forcibly close dozens of medical marijuana dispensaries that have established themselves within our City in recent years. No responsible person is suggesting that the City needs to pay them "just compensation" nor offer them to relocate to "receiving areas." The City requires property owners to remove graffiti and other forms of blight from their properties without paying just compensation. Nonconforming billboards are blight! Cities do have a constitutional police power to enact and enforce laws for the public welfare, including promoting aesthetics and traffic safety.

A. In Markham Advertising v. Washington, 73 Wash.2d 405, 439 P.2d 248 (1968), billboard companies challenged a 1961 Washington state law and regulations that required the removal of certain billboards within three years without any compensation. The state supreme court held that the apparent purposes for the billboard ban—traffic safety and aesthetics—were valid bases for the government's exercise of its police power to promote the public welfare. In response to the billboard companies' contention that their property was being unconstitutionally taken without compensation, the Court stated, "When a court determines, as we have in this case, that the police power has been properly invoked, there is no basis for this contention." The Court upheld the law with its three-year amortization period, and with no requirement for compensation to the billboard companies for the removal of their signs.

The plaintiffs in the Markham case appealed the Washington State Supreme Court's ruling to the United States Supreme Court, urging the highest court to reverse the state court's decision that the billboard ban was a valid exercise of the police power and that no compensation was constitutionally required for the forced removal of their billboards. The U.S. Supreme Court dismissed the appeal for want of a substantial federal question. 393 U.S. 316, 89 S.Ct. 553, 21 L.Ed.2d 512, rehearing denied, 393 U.S. 1112, 89 S.Ct. 854, 21 L.Ed.2d 813 (1969).

"When the U.S. Supreme Court dismisses an appeal for want of a substantial federal question, such action is a decision on the merits, and lower courts are bound by such decisions "until such time as the Court informs [them] that [they] are not." Hicks v. Miranda, 422 U.S. 332, 345 (1975). Accordingly, the Markham case is, and remains, precedent binding upon both Washington state and federal courts. The Markham case was cited approvingly multiple times by the U.S. Supreme Court in its landmark billboard case of Multimedia v. San Diego, 453 U.S. 490 (1981). It remains "good law" that must be followed by all courts until it is overruled by the Washington State or U.S. Supreme Court.

B. The United States Governmental Accountability Office, at the request of members of the U.S. Congress, researched and published summaries of court cases and concluded, both in 1991 and in 2004, that courts consistently uphold laws requiring the removal of billboards after an amortization period without paying compensation. The November 12, 2004, summary remains available at <http://www.gao.gov/decisions/other/302809.htm>. Its introductory paragraph reads as follows:

This responds to your request for an update of our February 6, 1991 opinion to Senator Chafee, B-239187 (Enclosure 1), summarizing case law regarding the permissibility of billboard amortization under the U.S. Constitution. At the time of our 1991 opinion, the vast majority of cases had upheld the general practice of amortization as constitutional; some courts also addressed, on a case-by-case basis, whether a particular amortization practice was constitutional. As discussed below and in Enclosure 2, the small number of additional cases involving billboard amortization decided since 1991 have likewise upheld this practice, ruling that billboard restrictions which provided for an amortization period did not rise to the level of a "taking" triggering constitutional compensation obligations.

C. In 2007, a Florida law school professor published a journal article that discussed the Washington State Supreme Court's 1968 Markham case and its summary affirmance by the United States Supreme Court. Stephen Durden. “Sign Amortization Laws: Insight into Precedent, Property, and Public Policy” Capital University Law Review 35 (2007): 891-922. Available at: http://works.bepress.com/stephen_durden/2 . He wrote at pages 905-06:

More than thirty years ago in Markham Advertising Co. Inc. v. Washington, the Supreme Court rejected, as insubstantial, a takings challenge to a typical Sign Amortization Code. In that case, as explained by the lower court, the state of Washington enacted a statute requiring removal of preexisting, lawfully erected signs. The statute provided no compensation, and the sign owners challenged the statute under the Fourteenth Amendment Takings Clause. The Washington statute was indistinguishable from a typical Sign Amortization Code. A use of land (i.e., sign advertising that was once lawful) was declared unlawful at a future date certain, and the statute provided no compensation. The Washington Supreme Court denied the takings claim, and plaintiffs appealed to the United States Supreme Court. The Supreme Court dismissed the appeal for want of a substantial federal question. Even though this type of dismissal is relatively rare, it is a decision on the merits, and it is not readily distinguishable from a per curiam affirmance or affirmance without opinion.

There is no doubt that in Markham, the Washington Supreme Court rejected the takings claim and the United States Supreme Court branded the takings claims as insubstantial. In presenting the constitutional issues to the Supreme Court, the jurisdictional statement in Markham included the claim that the Washington statute, which required preexisting billboards to be removed, constituted a due process claim for denial of just compensation. Even though this precedent seems, at best, weak, a plurality of the Court, in Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego, described Markham as the Court’s “own decision[.]” Indeed, on at least four occasions within Metromedia, the plurality relied on Markham as authority for various propositions. Not only did the Court cite to Markham, both before and after Markham, the Court rejected takings challenges to laws requiring the removal of preexisting property four times.

Supreme Court precedent related to Takings Clause challenges to Sign Amortization Codes is very straightforward, but leaves interested persons (e.g., lawyers, judges, commentators) a little uncomfortable. Those who rely on or attempt to predict application of law tend to prefer somewhat more concrete precedent that consists of decisions with opinions and analysis. That being said, it remains true that the Supreme Court precedent, as indicated above, unquestionably supports the constitutionality of Typical Sign Amortization Codes. [Footnotes omitted; emphasis added.]

D. In CCO’s August 2007 lawsuit against Tacoma challenging enforcement of the 1997 ordinance, its complaint was basically on free speech grounds—with the hyper-technical arguments that under the 1997 ordinance a structure met the definition of “billboard” only if on July 22, 1997, it was actually advertising “goods, products, events, or services not necessarily sold on the premises.” In that case, CCO’s lawyers never actually argued that the 1997 amortization provision was an unconstitutional taking without just compensation, though they asserted that without any supporting authority in its initial complaint. Nothing significant occurred in that lawsuit (except private settlement negotiations) until February 10, 2010, when CCO’s lawyer filed a motion for partial summary judgment based chiefly on its hyper-technical claims that its structures were not “billboards” on July 22, 1997. The City’s lawyers never filed any substantive arguments in opposition to CCO’s claims, but on March 16, 2010, the lawyers formally reported to the court that their clients had reached an agreement in principle that was to be presented to the Tacoma City Council for approval.

The Settlement Agreement, approved by the City Council on July 27, 2010, inexplicably included a provision directly contrary to the well-established law described above—that the City would compensate CCO for the fair market value of any billboards that the City ever in the future requires CCO to remove. Since the Markham case plainly recognizes that billboard-removal-by-amortization laws are a valid exercise of a jurisdiction’s police power, it likely is “ultra vires” (beyond their authority) for the 2010 City Council to contract away that police power from future City Councils. That the City’s lawyers (the City Attorney and contracted lawyers who formerly worked in the City’s legal department) in 2010 would counsel City officials to include that “vested rights” language in the Settlement Agreement suggests, to me, a shocking level of incompetence.

When the CCO vs. Tacoma litigation resumed in August 2011, the City continued to use the very same lawyers to argue that the 2010 Settlement Agreement was not binding. Those lawyers made five arguments, but did not raise a number of other good arguments because doing so would have implicated the quality of their own previous work concerning the Settlement Agreement. CCO moved the court to dismiss all of the City’s arguments. On December 5, 2011, the judge summarily dismissed three of the City’s arguments but left the other two for later adjudication. Nothing significant (except private negotiations) happened thereafter until August 21, 2012, when the judge entered the parties’ stipulated order of dismissal following their August 15, 2012, execution of the Standstill Agreement.

4. In defense of the fairness of enforcing the essence of the City’s 1997 ordinance, I remind my CWG colleagues of the following facts.

a. The City Council by an 8-to-1 vote on July 22, 1997, adopted the 1997 ordinance with its mandated removal of nonconforming billboards after a 10-year amortization period. At that time, there were only two billboard companies with signs in Tacoma—Sun Outdoor Advertising (a/k/a Sun Media) and Ackerley Communications (a/k/a AK Media).

b. On June 1, 1998, Sun Media was acquired by Lamar Advertising.

c. On June 14, 2002, CCO acquired Ackerley Group, including its AK Media billboards in Tacoma. This was almost five years into the ten-year amortization period from the 1997 ordinance.

d. On March 31, 2003, CCO acquired from Lamar Advertising its Tacoma billboards as part of an exchange of billboards in various states. This was five years and eight months into the ten-year amortization period from the 1997 ordinance.

CCO is always represented by highly qualified lawyers, accountants, and other professionals, so it is a certainty that CCO knew full well of Tacoma's half-expired 10-year amortization period when it acquired its Tacoma billboards. The value it placed on that portfolio of billboards would have reflected their impending forced removal in four to five years. CCO's aggressive litigation in opposition to the 1997 ordinance is simply bad faith corporate bullying of a small city that lacks, or whose leaders decline to spend, the funds necessary to hire competent lawyers to advise and represent it.

In response to CCO's claim that it, or the prior owners, had made great capital investments in its Tacoma billboards, the facts are otherwise. Because billboard structures are subject to property taxes, their owners are required to report their cost of installation to the county assessor. In this state, billboard are assessed and taxed based on a depreciation schedule applied to their initial cost of installation. In response to my records request, the Pierce County Assessor-Treasurer's office provided me the total reported costs of billboards installed each year within Tacoma's boundaries since 1958. The total installation costs of those billboard was $1,382,119—hardly a great capital investment for a 56-year period. Attached to this memo is a table showing the year-by-year investments in billboards.

I shared substantially all this information with our CWG moderator weeks ago, but she has determined not to share it with each of you. I believe it is highly relevant to our mission.

City Manager T.C. Broadnax and members of the Tacoma City Council: (cc: City Attorney Pauli)

Recently, as the March 1, 2012, deadline for billboard compliance under your Ordinance 28009 (adopted 8/9/2011) approached, I began reviewing the status of the City's litigation with Clear Channel. I am alarmed, so I am once again offering some suggestions from my perspective as a lawyer of 33 years.

On 9/23/11, a News Tribune article reported that Clear Channel claims the fair market value of its Tacoma billboards to exceed $75 million. Its court pleadings assert simply that those billboards were valued in 2007 in excess of $30 million and have increased in value since then.

As you know, Clear Channel in late July 2011 signed the Settlement Agreement that the City had signed a year earlier. Paragraph 4 of that Agreement states:

4. Vested Rights. Clear Channel and the City hereby acknowledge Clear Channel's vested rights with respect to its existing conforming and legally nonconforming billboard signs and relocation permits, and any signs constructed pursuant to the Ordinance. If and to the extent the City requires the removal of such signs or elimination of such permits at some future date (other than in connection with the construction of digital billboards as provided herein), the City will compensate Clear Channel for the fair market value of those interests.

In mid-August, 2011, the City filed a state court lawsuit seeking a judicial determination that the Settlement Agreement was not enforceable against the City. In late September, Clear Channel removed the lawsuit to federal court, and moved that court to dismiss the City's claims that the agreement was unenforceable. On 12/5/11, Federal Judge Benjamin Settle dismissed three of the City's five arguments, and I believe his ruling indicates his inclination to dismiss the City's remaining two arguments once Clear Channel files a motion for summary judgment. And I believe Judge Settle's ruling reflects his poor impression of the quality of the City's legal team.

I urge you all to read the court-filed documents (that I have posted at <http://cnc-tacoma.com/new-a-pending/53-billboard-litigation-round-two>) in the following order:

1. Judge Settle's Order dismissing most of the City's claims.

2. The Settlement Agreement, especially its paragraphs 3 through 6.
3. The Declaration by Chris Bacha, one of the City's lawyers.
4. The Declaration by Shelley Kerlake, the City's lead lawyer.
5. The City's Response to Clear Channel's Motion to Dismiss.

I am amazed that lawyers Bacha and Kerlake assert in their declarations that the fair market value compensation provisions of the Settlement Agreement were intended only to apply to future digital billboards, considering that the actual language of the "Vested Rights" paragraph states that it applies to "existing conforming and legally nonconforming billboard signs and relocation permits." I believe that Judge Settle is similarly amazed.

Given the amount at stake, the apparent fact that Ms. Kerlake and Mr. Bacha now must be the City's primary witnesses in support of its remaining claims, and the other factors discussed below, I strongly urge the City Manager to cause the City to engage for this litigation with Clear Channel top-tier lawyers with experience and success in high-stakes litigation and at least one of the nationally recognized lawyers who regularly assist local governments in billboard litigation.

The pleadings and docket report posted on the above-referenced website show that Clear Channel is represented by five lawyers, two being from a prominent Seattle law firm and three from a prominent Washington D.C. firm, Sidley Austin LLP. All five of those lawyers have achieved highest honors from their mostly top-tier law schools, and all have impressive professional credentials. Two of the Sidley Austin lawyer have clerked for U.S. Supreme Court justices and other federal judges. Just as some professional athletes are much more skilled and successful than others, the same is true for lawyers. Below are links to the bios of those five lawyers:

The City's hired lawyers, Shelley Kerlake and Chris Bacha, both formerly worked in the City's legal department -- Shelley for 11 years, Chris for 17 years. Neither apparently earned honors when they graduated from local Univ. of Puget Sound Law School (my own alma mater but not a top-tier law school, now named Seattle Univ. Law School). They may be capable lawyers for most municipal law issues, but I they are not in the same league as the lawyers representing Clear Channel. The unfortunate Settlement Agreement reflects, I believe, their inadequate representation of the City. Below are links to the bios of Ms. Kerlake and Mr. Bacha:

I observe from public records obtained from the City that City Attorney Elizabeth Pauli in July 2007 first attempted to retain for the Clear Channel litigation the Seattle lawyers of the internationally prominent law firm Kirkpatrick & Lockhart Preston Gates Ellis LLP. That is the caliber of law firm that I urge the City again to seek.

An additional reason why I believe that the City needs to change lawyers is that its current lawyers are understandably unlikely to challenge the Settlement Agreement with arguments that call into question the quality of their services while negotiating it for the City. The Settlement Agreement could be challenged as an improper attempt to circumvent the prohibitions on "contract zoning." The "vested rights" paragraph could be challenged as an attempt, by contract, to effect an unconstitutional gift of public funds, considering that the Washington State Supreme Court held in 1968 (affirmed by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1969) that a governmental body may exercise its police power to require the removal of billboards without compensation. Markham Advertising Co. v. State, 73 Wash.2d 405, 439 P.2d 248 (1968), appeal dismissed, 393 U.S. 316, 89 S.Ct. 553, 21 L.Ed.2d 512, rehearing denied, 393 U.S. 1112, 89 S.Ct. 854, 21 L.Ed.2d 813 (1969). Based upon the Markham case, the Washington State Supreme Court held in 1979 that Seattle would be making an unconstitutional gift of public funds if it paid compensation to the billboard company for signs ordered to be removed pursuant to the city's exercise of its police power. Ackerley Communications, Inc. v. Seattle, 92 Wash.2d 905, 602 P.2d 1177 (1979).

Other arguments may be made that the Settlement Agreement is unenforceable. In Judge Settle's ruling last December, under the heading "Repudiation," he quoted from a recent Washington appellate opinion concerning a withdrawn settlement offer: "An offeree's power of acceptance is terminated 'when the offeree receives from the offeror a manifestation of an intention not to enter into the proposed contract.'" But he ruled that the First Amendment to the Settlement Agreement barred the City from withdrawing its settlement offer until expiration of the extended option period. He wrote, "the City has failed to assert any allegation in its pleading that either the option or the extension of the option was not supported by adequate consideration." That was a major failure, that perhaps still can be corrected.

It is well established in contract law that an option may be withdrawn before its term if it is not supported by consideration (something promised or given by the optionee). The recent Washington appellate opinion cited by Judge Settle asserted "a promise not to revoke an offer, like all promises, requires consideration." Central Puget Sound Regional Transit Authority v. Heirs and Devisees of Eastey, 135 Wn. App. 446, 454 (2006); Baker v. Shaw, 68 Wash. 99, 122 P. 611 (1912) ("[I]f the option be given without consideration, it may be withdrawn at any time prior to its acceptance.")

It is equally well established that an agreement to extend an option contract beyond its initial term is a separate option contract that requires separate consideration if it is to bind the optionor for the extended term. The Georgia Supreme Court applied that established common law in 1969, saying "An extension of an option contract, whether made before or after the original option expires, is in reality a new option and must, to be enforceable as against the optioner, be supported by valuable consideration." Wolfe v. Deaton, 225 Ga. 412, 169 S.E.2d 311 (1969); see also Youree v. Eshaghoff, 99 Ark. App. 4, 256 S.W.3d 551 (2007) ("[T]here must be additional consideration when the parties to a contract enter into an additional contract.")

It is readily apparent that Clear Channel gave no consideration to the City when the parties executed the First Amendment to the Settlement Agreement. Accordingly, the City should be recognized as permitted to withdraw its offer (its signed Settlement Agreement) any time after the initial six-month option period expired so long as it did so before Clear Channel accepted that offer. If the argument still can be made to Judge Settle, perhaps he might agree that the City's actions sufficiently communicated to Clear Channel "a manifestation of an intention not to enter into the proposed contract," using the phrase that Judge Settle's quoted from the Transit Authority opinion.

An additional argument that the City's current lawyers are unlikely to make, because it calls into question their lawyering, is that execution of First Amendment to the Settlement Agreement by the City Manager, City Attorney, and City Clerk was not authorized because no City Council action authorized it. In a pleading signed by lawyers for both Clear Channel and the City filed in the initial federal court case on 3/16/2010, the lawyers asserted, "The undersigned counsel have reached an agreement in principle to resolve this case. The Settlement Agreement must be approved, however, by the Tacoma City Council." And at the foot of page 6 of the originals of the Settlement Agreement, signed by City officials, that the City sent in August 2010 to Clear Channel, the City had typed, "Settlement Agreement between City of Tacoma and Clear approved by motion at the Tacoma City Council meeting of July 27,2010." It was apparent to Clear Channel that only the City Council possessed actual authority to approve the Settlement Agreement, including its six-month option period. Correspondingly, it should be recognized that authorization of City officials to execute the First Amendment to that Settlement Agreement also required passage of an approving motion by the City Council, an action that never occurred (at least not in an open public meeting as the law requires).

I recognize that my unsolicited suggestions are not always followed. Nearly a year ago, on 3/14/11, I emailed suggestions to Shelley Kerslake and Elizabeth Pauli and attached for them to consider my message of 3/7/11 to Historic Tacoma's Sharon Winters in which I wrote:

"Given the significance of the issues in the lawsuit, it surprises me that the City did not hire a more prominent (and probably more capable) lawfirm to defend the City's 1997 ordinance, or at least to seek a second opinion for such a lawfirm before "rolling over:"

"It is my view that the City could renounce the proposed Settlement Agreement and return to court to defend its 1997 ordinance. The proposed Settlement Agreement signed in late July 2010 by the City's manager, clerk, and attorney, gave Clear Channel on "option period" of six months to sign it. Clear Channel never did. In late January 2011, without City Council authorization, the City's manager, clerk, and attorney signed a First Amendment to the Settlement Agreement extending until August 15, 2011, the deadline for Clear Channel to sign the proposed Settlement Agreement. Arguably, the First Amendment is invalid since the City Council did not authorize it. But irregardless, I consider the proposed Settlement Agreement nothing more that a the City's offer that it can revoke at will, since its paragraph 7 states, "Clear Channel's option to execute this Agreement, or to leave the Agreement unexecuted, shall be within Clear Channel's sole discretion. Nothing herein shall be interpreted to require Clear Channel to execute the Agreement.""

Please consider these suggestions.

Claudia Bingham Baker: Will you please get this to the attention of a WSDOT manager or Asst. AG. Tacoma's city leaders are proposing to restore "legal conforming" status to about 200 billboard faces that are now simply "illegal" signs, but to require their removal without compensation in 3 to 5 years. That would violate the "outdoor advertising control" provisions of federal law that puts at risk 10% of Washington's federal highway funds.

We need somebody knowledgeable from WSDOT to participate in this discussion. Below is my message to the Chair of Tacoma's volunteer Planning Commission. Below that are my exchanges with U.S. Dept. of Transportation, Federal Highway Administration, officials in Washington D.C.

I'll certainly let you know if I receive any response from FHWA. I've been unable to identify anybody in WSDOT with responsibility (and knowledge) concerning the outdoor advertising control issues. The sole WSDOT employee (Pat O'Leary) who had been assigned that responsibility has retired without a replacement, and his supervisor, Mike Dornfeld (with whom I spoke on 9/29) lacks knowledge of the issues. The state risks loss of 10% of its federal highway funds if it fails to comply with the Highway Beautification Act, including its provision requiring "just compensation" when the state or its jurisdictions require removal of a "legal nonconforming" sign that is along a roadway on the National Highway System.

In a 1990 opinion (Fort Collins v. Root Outdoor Adv.), the Colorado supreme court declined to concur with the WA supreme court's ruling in Ackerley v. Seattle (1979), stating in a footnote: "Further, we note that after Ackerley was decided, the [U.S.] Department of Transportation notified the State of Washington that it was in danger of losing 10 percent of its federal highway funds because Ackerley permitted the removal of signs covered by the federal act without payment of just compensation. Subsequently, the State of Washington and Ackerly reached a settlement agreement which protected the state's federal funds."

In essence, there are millions of dollars at issue, yet our Tacoma city officials appear eager to proceed blindly, knowing that they are uninformed about the application of MAP-21 to the billboards in our city. The P.C. Task Force's report ended by stating, "Further information is needed about the effects of "MAP 21" applicability to arterial streets and the off-premises signs located along those streets."

Dawn Horan:

Thank you for chatting with me, an citizen/lawyer in Tacoma, Washington. Much of what I will describe below and in attachments is available at <http://cnc-tacoma.com>, the website of the Tacoma Central Neighborhood Council of which I am the current chair and the webmaster.

In 1997, the Tacoma city council enacted Ordinance 26101 requiring removal of legal nonconforming billboards after a ten-year "amortization period" -- by 8/1/2007. Subsequently, Clear Channel Outdoor (CCO) acquired all but 8 of the roughly 400 billboard faces in the City, and in July 2007 it sued claiming the 1997 ordinance was unconstitutional. The City's Manager or City Council chose to negotiate rather than litigate, and in August 2010 reached a proposed Settlement Agreement that would require the City to change its sign code to permit digital billboards along various principal and minor arterials. In early 2011, public objection to that proposed sign code change caused City officials to abandon that proposed settlement, and in August 2011 the city council enacted Ordinance 28009 that further regulated billboards (rendering all but perhaps two to be nonconforming) and amended the amortization period to require removal of legal nonconforming billboards by March 1, 2012.

Shortly thereafter, the City filed a lawsuit seeking a judgment that the 2010 Settlement Agreement was void, to which CCO opposed. That lawsuit was dismissed in August 2012 when the City Manager (without City Council legislation) and CCO entered into a "Standstill Agreement" under which the parties agreed to negotiate. It stated, "During the Standstill Period, the billboard code adopted in 1997 shall apply to Clear Channel, with the exception of Section 13.06.521N6(C)(6)(Amortization), which Section shall not apply to or be enforced against Clear Channel during the Standstill Period." That Standstill Agreement has been extended repeatedly and remains in force.

The City leaders now are proposing the adoption of an ordinance that would, among other things, repeal the 1997/2011 "amortization provision" and replace it with a new provision stating that "All legal nonconforming billboard signs shall be ... removed or made conforming" within three years if in residential/shoreline/conservation zoning districts, and within five years if in other zoning districts. City leaders are proposing city council adoption of the proposed ordinance in early December, 2015, and the first public hearing is set for October 7. That proposed ordinance is attached, from the City's webpage at <http://www.cityoftacoma.org/cms/one.aspx?portalId=169&pageId=15779>

On that webpage is a link to a Planning Commission Review Packet for its September 16, 2015, meeting that is a report of recommendations that resulted in the proposed ordinance. However, that report noted, "Further information is needed about the effects of "MAP 21" applicability to arterial streets and the off-premises signs located along those streets." City records show that 238 billboard faces are on principal arterials that MAP-21 has included in the Nat'l Highway System, but only about 37 such faces were in the NHS prior to the October 1, 2012, effective date MAP-21.

The questions to address are:

1. If the City does not repeal the 1997/2011 "amortization provision" that required removal of previously legal nonconforming billboards in 2007 or early 2012, may those billboards be classified as "illegal signs" [23 CFR 750.703(e)] as to which the regulation requiring "just compensation" for "lawfully maintained" signs [23 CFR 750.707(e)] will not apply if the City in three to five years actually enforces its ordinances and compels their removal?
2. If the City, as now proposed, repeals the 1997/2011 amortization provision and adopts the proposed new amortization provision stating that "All legal nonconforming billboard signs shall be ... removed or made conforming" within the three or five years periods stated above, will that cause those roughly 200 billboard faces along roads that MAP-21 now includes in the NHS to be subject to the requirement that the City pay CCO (or later owner) just compensation for their removal?

If the City must pay CCO "just compensation" to remove its billboards, I am confident they will never be removed. CCO's counsel asserted in June 2007 that the billboards the City then sought to remove would cost the City up to $60 million in just compensation.

Attached are the 1997 and 2011 ordinances and current (2014) sign code reflecting those ordinance, and the now proposed revisions to the sign code.

Thank you for your agency's attention to this.

Subject line: Outdoor billboard regulation

Dear Planning Commission:

Outdoor billboards play an important role in Tacoma. In particular, they give local business owners a way to share information about their products and services with the public. I am concerned that attempts to limit outdoor advertisements even further would prove harmful to many small and local businesses in our city.

Outdoor advertising is one of just a few affordable ways left for local businesses to communicate with new and existing customers. Online and mobile technology is fragmenting local advertising options and pushing up cost, and the outdoor industry remains an effective way to drive customers to businesses.

As our local economy is finally showing signs of improving, I would hate to see area businesses negatively impacted by additional billboard regulations. Further regulation will only limit the options available to our local business owners.

Subject: Billboards in Tacoma

Dear Commissioners,

Thank you for your proposal concerning billboards in Tacoma. I support it wholeheartedly. It is a measure that Tacoma's citizens have asked for, and voted on several times. I commend you for including the requirement to maintain the current amortization program (from 1997); it's time for the Council to honor the agreements of the past and begin paring down the size and number of billboards blighting our streets and neighborhoods.

Thank you for your service to Tacoma's citizens,

Dear Planning Commission Members

We are opposed to any changes to the City of Tacoma Sign regulations that would allow pole mounted billboards in the City of Tacoma. We consider any agreement with Clear Channel Outdoor that would allow any of their non-conforming billboards to remain would be ill considered and inappropriate. At this point the recent review process from start to what appears to be its obvious conclusion; seems to be an orchestrated cave-in to Clear Channel by allowing their existing non-conforming billboards to remain as trash on Tacoma's landscape. Our previous City Council took the necessary steps to allow Clear Channel to amortize their costs in their existing non-conforming billboards. This should have removed any reasonable legal challenge to their forced removal. Why would anyone in City government even consider not following through by requiring the removal of all non-conforming billboards. It is time, after all these years of promises, to require Clear Channel to finally remove all non-conforming billboards.

The willingness of the City to even accomplish this Planning Commission review brings up a number of questions:

- How was Clear Channel Outdoor able to game the City's legal staff, and other elected and appointed officials into even considering allowing any non-conforming billboards?
- How could any lawsuit claiming a violation of constitutional rights end up justifying regular or digital billboards? It hasn't worked in other Cities?
- Why should the Planning Commission and City Council change billboard regulations to make billboards that have been non-conforming and in violation for years, suddenly legal and conforming to the sign regulations. Now is the time for all non-conforming billboards to be finally removed from the City?
- Does allowing the citizens to vent their anger at meetings on the City's Sign regulations really affect the outcome of the decision process or will the City still cave-in to Clear Channel Outdoors' pressure?

Don't let Clear Channel's threats of lawsuits bluff you. Lawyers in other Cities have stood up to them. There is no reason Tacoma's lawyers can't do the same. Of course it is always easier to settle out of court. Just remember an earlier Planning Commission and City Council has taken the necessary beginning steps to start the process of finally getting rid of pole mounted billboards from Tacoma; don't let them down when we finally get to the point where it is necessary to follow thru on the process. Don't weaken now! We note that the present billboards are concentrated in our South Tacoma streets due to the high traffic volumes. Let's clean them up.

The City Council and the Planning Commission are charged with making Tacoma a better place to live and should not be denigrating it to merely a backdrop to billboards. We keep trying to make Tacoma truly "The City of Destiny", but it is increasingly difficult when billboards give Tacoma the appearance that our destiny is "Commercialism" and "Anything for a Buck"

Hopefully Tacoma has successfully prevented any sign company from bringing digital billboards to our city. We request the Planning Commission also take action to further review digital sign regulations imposed on our local businesses to assure digital signs do not cause the same driver distraction that results from digital billboards.

We request the Planning Commission recommend against allowing any pole mounted billboards in Tacoma and send the message to the City Council requesting review of digital sign regulations.

Sincerely,

Subject: billboards

Dear Commissioners,

It is past time for the Council to honor commitments and agreements and start cutting out the bad billboards that seem to be everywhere.

Thank you for your service.

City of Tacoma
Planning Commission

October 21, 2015

HONORABLE MAYOR AND MEMBERS OF THE CITY COUNCIL,

On behalf of the Planning Commission, I am forwarding our recommendations regarding the proposed Land Use Regulations for Billboards, as outlined in the Planning Commission's Findings of Fact and Recommendations Report, October 21, 2015 (attached).

The Planning Commission supports the City Council's intent to explore alternative regulations for the control and reduction of billboards in the City. This proposal focuses on the removal of pole-mounted freestanding billboards and incentivizes the use of wall-mounted billboards, especially in Downtown Tacoma. The proposed regulations endeavor to protect the quality of life in our neighborhoods, public spaces and the aesthetic qualities of the built environment and vistas in Tacoma.

The Planning Commission believes the proposed regulations support the City's strategic goals for a safe, clean, attractive, and environmentally sustainable city and foster economic diversity.

It is with that understanding and intent that the Planning Commission respectfully requests the City Council adopt the proposed regulations for Billboards, as recommended.

Sincerely,

CHRIS BEALE

BILLBOARD CODE AMENDMENTS

TACOMA PLANNING COMMISSION FINDINGS OF FACT AND RECOMMENDATIONS OCTOBER 21, 2015

A. SUBJECT:

Proposed Billboards Regulations.

B. SUMMARY OF PROPOSED AMENDMENT:

The proposed regulations, as shown in Exhibit “A”, would amend the Tacoma Municipal Code, Chapters 13.06.521- General Sign Regulations, 13.06.522 – District Sign Regulations, 13.06.700 – Definitions; 13.06A.050 – Additional use regulations and add new section 13.06.523 – Billboard Sign Regulations that includes the following provisions:

- Provides for relocation credits which emphasize removal of pole-mounted billboard signs in favor of billboard wall signs;
- Opens the following additional zones to billboard wall signs: DCC, DMU, WR, PDB, UCX, CCX, CIX and NCX;
- Allows billboard wall sign over 300 square feet with staff review;
- Increases the height limit to 35 feet in areas over 500 feet from areas not permitting billboards;
- Reduces the required distance between pole mounted billboards that are 300 square feet or less in size from 500 feet to 300 feet;
- Reduces the required distance between wall billboards from 500 feet to 200 feet;
- Reduces the required buffer distance from no-billboard zones and sensitive uses (such as schools, parks, historic properties) from 500 feet to 250 feet;
- Reduces design standards while retaining the prohibition on pole-mounted billboards that are off-set, over-cantilevered, extend over buildings, and have more than one face per side of the billboard;
- Requires efficient lighting and illumination to be turned off between midnight and 5 am;
- Requires stricter enforcement for signs with graffiti; and
- Retains amortization as a means to remove non-conforming billboards.

C. BACKGROUND:

Billboard regulations have been a highly contentious issue in Tacoma for decades and the City’s billboard codes have evolved substantially over time. Based on the City’s current regulations, only 3 of the 311 existing billboard faces in the City are compliant. The other 308 billboard faces, if installed per the billboard regulations at the time of permit, are considered “legally nonconforming” -- because they are not consistent with the current code.

The City first adopted comprehensive billboard regulations in 1988, which sought to limit the number of billboards to those in place in April of that year, ban billboards from all parts of the City excepting industrial and some commercial zones, and adopt other regulations. After a 1996 moratorium, that code was significantly revised in 1997, adding provisions that made many more existing billboards nonconforming, and adopting an amortization provision that required nonconforming billboards to be brought into compliance or removed, at the cost of the owner, within 10 years. The rationale behind amortization was that the owner of the billboard structure would have been able to recoup its capital investment in the structure over the course of a decade. Clear Channel Outdoor has owned nearly all of the billboards in the City since the early 2000s.

When, in 2007, the City sought to enforce the 1997 code amortization provisions, Clear Channel Outdoor sued, leading to a proposed Settlement Agreement in 2010. The proposed Settlement Agreement would’ve recognized Clear Channel’s vested rights in its conforming and legally nonconforming signs and relocation permits, and created an exchange program that would allow digital billboards. After widespread community opposition to digital billboards, the City did not adopt a digital ordinance as contemplated by the proposed Settlement Agreement, but instead passed the 2011 Code Amendments which retained an amortization provision as a way to reduce the number of billboards. The 2011 Code also banned digital billboards, expanded buffer and dispersal requirements, and instituted a number of design requirements. Following the adoption of the 2011 Code further legal disputes between the City and Clear Channel Outdoor ensued, which led to the current Standstill Agreement.

Per the Standstill Agreement, the 2011 Code remains in place, but is not enforced, and instead the 1997 code applies, except for the amortization provisions are not enforced. Under the 2011 Code, all but three of the current 311 billboard faces in the City are nonconforming, most for multiple reasons. Nearly ninety percent of the billboards do not comply with the buffer requirements in the current code. Also per the Standstill agreement, the City of Tacoma was to explore alternatives to its existing billboard regulations, with the goal of an overall reduction of billboards and protect neighborhoods and sensitive uses.

During the Standstill Period, the parties agreed to meet and confer to determine if a permanent solution could be reached to resolve the issues between the parties. The discussions were to focus on a sign consolidation program whereby a plan could be developed to remove specified signs from designated portions of the City in exchange for bulletin size (672 square feet) static billboards to be constructed or reconstructed in certain areas of the City which are mutually agreeable to the City and Clear Channel. These plans would also include a plan for vested rights for all constructed and newly constructed or reconstructed billboards. If the issues between the parties are not resolved during the Standstill Period, either party has the right to reengage in the legal process.

To start this process of looking at alternatives for a permanent solution (new regulations), the City formed the Tacoma Billboards Community Working Group (CWG). The CWG was a 17 member group representing neighborhood councils, business districts, Scenic and Historic Tacoma, commercial real estate, billboard owners, Port of Tacoma, the advertising industry, non-profits, the Planning Commission and Clear Channel Outdoor. Their mission was to develop at least two viable alternative regulatory approaches for billboards – with these regulatory approaches being different from current code, in favor of an approach that better balances the interests of all the various stakeholders.

The CWG’s work spanned six months, during which they conducted eleven public meetings and heard from billboard opponents, Clear Channel Outdoor, local firms and non-profits using billboards, City Legal and Planning staff and WSDOT staff. They also completed many hours of homework to augment the meetings, which were run by an independent facilitator. The facilitator also prepared the final report of recommendations and along with the co-chairs of the group, presented them to the City Council. The Council voted to send the recommendations to the Planning Commission for additional work and development of a code amendment recommendation.

D. FINDINGS OF FACT:

1. The Comprehensive Plan, adopted in 1993 by Ordinance No. 25360 and amended by ordinance once every year thereafter, is Tacoma's Comprehensive Plan as required by the Growth Management Act (GMA) and consists of several plan and program elements.
2. The Growth Management Act (GMA) requires any amendments to the Comprehensive Plan and development regulations conform to the requirements of the Act.
3. The GMA allows counties and cities to amend their comprehensive land use plans generally only once each year, except that amendments may be considered more frequently for a limited set of circumstances. These proposed amendments do not include any changes to the Comprehensive Plan.
4. The GMA further requires that any change to development regulations shall be consistent with and implement the Comprehensive Plan. Development regulations include, but are not limited to, zoning controls, critical area ordinances, shoreline master programs, official controls, planned unit development ordinances, subdivision ordinances, and binding site plan ordinances. The proposed amendments fit within this definition of ‘development regulations’.
5. Chapter 13.02 of the Tacoma Municipal Code (TMC) sets forth the procedures and criteria for amending the Comprehensive Plan and development regulations and for area-wide zoning reclassifications.
6. Pursuant to TMC 13.02.040, the Planning Commission may review and make recommendations to formulate effective and efficient land use and development regulations and processes in order to implement the goals and policies of the Comprehensive Plan.
7. The City Council adopted Resolution No. 37070 on December 19, 2006, approving the four guiding principles for planning the future growth of the City of Tacoma: (1) to protect neighborhoods; (2) to protect critical areas; (3) to protect port, industrial and manufacturing uses; and (4) to increase densities in the downtown and neighborhood business districts.

8. The City of Tacoma made major amendments to its sign code for billboards in 1988. The number of billboards and their total square footage were capped at the amount in existence on April 12, 1988 including those for which permit applications were filed prior to April 13, 1988. No additional billboards were permitted; however, an existing billboard could be relocated to a location that meets certain zoning, buffer and dispersal requirements, as long as the total number and square footage of billboard signs was not exceeded.
9. Regulations regarding billboards were changed in 1997 to require all nonconforming billboards be made conforming or be discontinued and removed by August 1, 2007, in effect establishing a 10-year amortization program for nonconforming billboards.
10. After the proposed Settlement Agreement was dissolved, the City adopted new regulations in 2011 which prohibited digital billboards, created more stringent standards for the existing static billboards and provided a few months to bring the existing billboards into compliance or have them declared illegal. Clear Channel sued the City over these regulations.
11. In August 2012, the City entered into a Standstill Agreement to quell legal action between the City and Clear Channel Outdoor and to provide time to reach a comprehensive understanding on the appropriate regulation of outdoor advertising in Tacoma. The key tenets of the Standstill Agreement are: to stop enforcement of the existing code (Substitute Ordinance No. 28009); apply the July 1997 code (minus amortization provisions) to Clear Channel's billboards; explore alternatives that would reduce the number of existing billboards by establishing an exchange program which consolidates existing billboards (mostly poster sized – 288 square feet) onto bulletin sized (672 square feet) static billboards; and include a plan for vested rights for all constructed and newly constructed or reconstructed billboards. Clear Channel completed the removal of 31 billboard faces and repaired an additional 18 as part of the Standstill Agreement. Since the agreement, Clear Channel Outdoor has removed an additional 50 billboard faces for a total of 81, which is a reduction of over 21 percent of the inventory it had before the Standstill Agreement.
12. There are currently 311 billboard faces on 169 billboard structures in the City, of which Clear Channel Outdoor owns 302 and 165 respectively. Clear Channel Outdoor also possesses the rights to relocate the square footage of the 31 billboard faces removed as part of the Standstill Agreement.
13. Of the 311 existing faces, only three comply with the current code. The majority of the signs that do not comply are nonconforming because they are located in zones which do not allow billboards. A number of billboards are nonconforming solely because they are located too close to other billboards, in violation of the dispersal requirements. Others are nonconforming because they exceed the maximum size or height.
14. The sign regulations are part of the Land Use Regulatory Code and thus are under the purview of the Tacoma Planning Commission.
15. The Planning Commission was asked by the City Council to formulate code amendments, using the work of the Tacoma Billboards Community Working Group as an initial framework, complete recommendations for issues that the CWG did not make a consensus recommendation (exchange mechanism, height, design standards, etc.), receive public comment on preliminary recommendations and additional standards, and provide a recommendation to the Council.

16. The general scope included development of regulations to address allowing static billboards in additional zoning districts of the city, as well as providing relief on performance standards for billboards, as well as conducting a public review process of those proposed changes. The overall goal was to achieve a substantial reduction in the number of nonconforming billboards in exchange for the allowance of a smaller number of larger billboards.
17. Draft amendments were prepared under the auspices of the Planning Commission with public participation consistent with GMA requirements and the procedures of TMC Chapter 13.02. The proposed amendments were presented to and discussed by the Planning Commission during their regular meetings, all of which are open to the public.
18. Public input was solicited at a meeting of the Community Council and at a meeting of the Cross-District Association. The primary concern noted was to have billboards maintained in good condition.
19. The Planning Commission began its review on June 3, 2015, when it established a draft schedule for review of the proposal and an overall scope for the project. The Planning Commission then held meetings on July 15, 2015 and August 5, 2015 to review and discuss the CWG recommendations and to start formulating ideas for a draft recommendation. At the August 5th meeting, because of the complexity of the issues, the Planning Commission voted to form a four member Task Force to work with staff at public workshops to prepare draft regulations for the entire Commission to consider. Five 2-3 hour Task Force workshops were held to complete a preliminary proposal. Key issues discussed during the Task Force meetings included:
 - Wall mounted vs. freestanding billboards
 - Amortization
 - Exchange program
 - Proposed new zones and criteria to allow new signs
 - Highway advertising control
 - Buffering and dispersal
 - Height and size
 - Analysis of the potential wall sign receiving areas
 - Considering the option of renewing court fight to remove the billboards through amortization
20. The Planning Commission discussed the amendments proposed by the Task Force at their September 16, 2015 meeting and set a public hearing for October 7, 2015 to consider the preliminary proposal.
21. Written and/or electronic notice of the Planning Commission's public hearing was provided to all recipients of the Planning Commission agenda, the Planning Commission's electronic mailing list, City Council members, Neighborhood Councils, business district associations, adjacent jurisdictions, other governmental agencies, the Puyallup Tribal Nation, City staff, City Commissions, environment, development, civic and social organizations, major institutions and employers, potentially affected property owners, and other interested individuals and groups. This notification included the distribution of more than 300 postcard mailers and 500 e-mail notifications. Notice was sent to all properties with existing billboards, billboard owners, business districts, neighborhood councils, and non-profits. Additionally, the public notice was posted on the bulletin boards on the first and second floors of the Tacoma Municipal Building.

22. The provided notice stated the time and place of the public hearing, the purpose of the hearing, information pertaining to the preliminary environmental determination, where and how additional information could be obtained, and how to provide comments.
23. Copies of the public review draft code amendments and staff report were forwarded to all branches of the Tacoma Public Library. In addition, an informational page was established on the City of Tacoma website (www.cityoftacoma.org/planning).
24. In accordance with RCW 36.70A.106, the City of Tacoma, on September 28, 2015, notified the State Department of Commerce and other required State agencies of its intent to amend the Land Use Regulatory Code. This notice included transmittal of the proposed amendments. On September 29, 2015 the Department of Commerce confirmed that the City had met the requirement of RCW 36.70A.106 as to notice to State agencies. No comments were received from the Department of Commerce or other State agencies.
25. A notification was sent to Joint Base Lewis-McChord (JBLM) on September 28, 2015 (per RCW 36.70A.530(4)). No comments were received from JBLM.
26. Environmental Review – Pursuant to WAC 197-11-340(2) and the City's SEPA procedures, a Preliminary Determination of Environmental Nonsignificance (DNS) for the proposed regulations was issued on September 23, 2015 (SEPA File Number SEP2015-40000254986), based upon a review of an environmental checklist. The DNS and the environmental checklist have been provided or made available to appropriate entities that received the Planning Commission's public hearing notice. A legal notice concerning this environmental determination was advertised in the City of Tacoma's official newspaper, the Tacoma Daily Index, on September 28, 2015. This determination was not modified by the City, and became final on October 9, 2015.
27. The Planning Commission conducted a public hearing on October 7, 2015 on the proposed regulations and left public comment open until October 9, 2015.
28. Eleven individuals testified at the public hearing and 27 written comments were submitted by the comment deadline of October 9, 2015. Of the 34 persons that commented at the hearing and/or in writing, 10 were generally in favor of billboards and 24 were generally against them. Those in favor noted the opportunity and positive impacts billboard advertising provides for small businesses in the community. Those opposed highlighted the negative impacts to the aesthetics of the community. Most of these people favor amortization and, if necessary, a court battle to enforce removal of signs. Five persons in opposition mentioned digital or electronic billboards, which are not being proposed.

29. On October 21, 2015 copies of all letters and e-mails submitted during the comment period were provided to the Planning Commission for their consideration, together with a summary of the oral testimony received during the public hearing.
30. Planning staff prepared a Comments and Responses Report, which summarized the key issues that were raised in public testimony and provided staff responses for consideration by the Commission. This report was presented to the Commission at their regular meeting on October 21, 2015.
31. In addition, the Commission reviewed supplemental information about the effects of various buffer options for schools, historic properties and no-billboard zones on the amount of receiving area within the downtown for wall mounted billboards. The Commission discussed these topics in depth, and discussed changes that would need to be made to their final recommendation to City Council.
32. The Commission found that the proposed amendments were inconsistent with the goals and policies of the Comprehensive Plan in several ways.
33. Amortization has been upheld by courts in Washington and elsewhere as an appropriate method of ending non-conforming uses while allowing adequate return on investment.
34. A primary goal of the Comprehensive Plan is the protection of neighborhoods. Allowing pole mounted billboards near residential neighborhoods is contrary to this goal because of the size, location, and unsightly support poles and catwalks, which in many cases would represent an unreasonable impact on adjacent neighborhoods, even considering controls on height, lighting and buffering from sensitive uses.
35. Mixed-Use Centers are addressed in the Comprehensive Plan as the focus area for the city's growth, where development is desired to be pedestrian-oriented. A strong desire is expressed for improved design, complete streets, and support of transit-oriented development. Allowing new pole mounted billboards in mixed-use districts would be in conflict with the stated policy intent of the Comprehensive Plan.
36. Based on these findings, the Commission also finds that allowing new pole mounted billboards in these areas would be inconsistent with the policy and procedural requirements of GMA whereby development regulations must be consistent with and implement the Comprehensive Plan.
37. In 1997, and again in 2011, the City Council made a strong policy and regulatory statement that billboards that are too big, too close to each other, or too close to sensitive uses should not be allowed to remain. The City determined that existing nonconforming billboards at these locations should be removed, after a reasonable amount of time to recoup investment. The framework presented by the Community Working Group represents a dramatic shift in direction from that policy and regulatory statement, one that can not be consistent with the City's adopted policies unless a significant reduction in billboards can be achieved. Amortization is designed to ensure that desired reduction.
38. As proposed, only 21 of the 311 existing billboard faces in the City would comply with the amended regulations.

39. Receiving areas for wall-mounted billboard in the mixed-use districts proposed to allow billboards are limited due to the current lack of suitable buildings that are tall enough, have a blank side wall and are visible from the adjacent roadway. The minimum height above ground requirement necessitates a minimum two story building and side walls must be used because primary facades are not allowed to have billboards. Existing building setbacks and street tree landscaping also makes many buildings unsuitable for wall billboards.
40. Pursuant to RCW 36.70A.370 and following the guidelines prepared by the Washington State Attorney General pursuant to RCW 36.70A.370, the proposed amendments were reviewed by the City Attorney to assure that adoption of the changes will not result in an unconstitutional taking of property. The current code contains amortization language which is not proposed to change. It has not been conclusively shown that this clause results in an unconstitutional taking of property.
41. Further, it became clear through the review of the billboard regulations that the City does not have adequate regulations for on-premise signage. Many of the same concerns and technical issues exist with them as well, including brightness, driver distraction, and size. A review of on-premises digital signage should be a high priority.
42. The Planning Commission reviewed various iterations of the proposed regulations for Billboards at the meeting on October 21, 2015. This meeting was open to the public.

E. CONCLUSIONS

1. The Planning Commission concludes that freestanding pole-mounted billboards should be phased out in favor of wall mounted signs, which can be allowed in expanded zones in the city.
2. The recommended land use code amendments are consistent with the Growth Management Act and other applicable state statutes, the County-wide Planning Policies for Pierce County and the multicounty policies for the Central Puget Sound region, and are consistent with and implement the City's Comprehensive Plan.
3. The Commission further concludes that the proposed amendments will benefit the City as a whole and are in the best interests of the citizens of Tacoma.

Enact the following new section:

13.06.523 Billboards

A. New billboard faces.

1. Any new billboard must be installed in compliance with this chapter. In no case shall the number of billboard faces and total square footage of billboards in the City of Tacoma exceed 311 billboard sign faces and 93,684 square feet of total billboard sign area.
2. Installation/placement of any new or relocated billboard structure and/or face requires a sign permit.
3. New billboards shall only be allowed through an exchange program under which the removal of legal nonconforming billboards generates credits and the construction of new billboards consumes credits, based on the following structure:
 - a. Relocating from a legal nonconforming freestanding billboard in any zone to a wall-mounted billboard in a permitted downtown district (DCC, DMU, WR) or the UCX mixed-use district is allowed at a 2:1 exchange ratio (two square feet of new wall-mounted billboard sign area will be allowed for every one square foot of freestanding billboard signage removed).
 - b. Relocating from a legal nonconforming freestanding billboard to a wall-mounted billboard in the same district or the CCX, CIX, or PDB districts will result in an allowed 1.5:1 exchange ratio (One and a half square feet of new wall-mounted billboard sign area will be granted for every one foot of freestanding billboard signage removed).
 - c. All other freestanding billboard relocations in the C-2 and industrial zones will be allowed based on a 1:1.5 exchange ratio (one square foot of new freestanding billboard sign area will be granted for every one and a half square feet of legal nonconforming billboard area removed).
 - d. Relocation from legal nonconforming freestanding billboards to wall-mounted billboards in the NCX district will be allowed at a 1:1 ratio, but only after the R-2, R-4, RCX, CONS, S-10, and C-1 districts are free of nonconforming billboards.
4. Demolition. Removal of all faces from a billboard structure shall also require the issuance of a demolition permit for the structure itself and removal of billboard faces (and their associated structures, if necessary) shall be completed prior to the construction of new or relocated billboard faces. Structures removed shall be removed to grade and the grade restored at the site.

B. Location.

1. Billboards shall only be allowed per the following table.

Billboard Use Matrix

3. Billboards are also prohibited in the following overlay zoning districts: the HIST Historic and CONS Conservation, and VSD View Sensitive districts.
4. Digital billboards are prohibited in the City of Tacoma.

C. Size.

1. The maximum area of any one freestanding billboard sign shall be 300 square feet, with a maximum vertical sign face dimension of 12 feet and maximum horizontal sign face dimension of 25 feet, inclusive of any border and trim, but excluding the base or apron, supports, and other structural members; provided, cutouts and extensions may add up to 20 percent of additional sign area.
2. Existing 672 square foot billboards shall have a maximum vertical sign face dimension of 14 feet and maximum horizontal sign face dimension of 48 feet, inclusive of any border and trim, but excluding the base or apron, supports, and other structural members.
3. Wall-mounted billboard faces are not subject to specific height or width limitations, and may be larger than 300 square feet in area, subject to staff review to ensure that any larger billboard will not create significant impacts on surrounding uses, the desired character of the area, or the architecture of the building to which it is attached.
4. Legally-established freestanding billboards larger than 300 square feet in area that were in existence on the date of adoption of this section are permitted in the industrial districts.

D. Height.

 - b. 35 feet for freestanding billboards located more than 500 feet from residential, shoreline, view-sensitive, historic, and conservation districts;
 - c. Wall-mounted billboards may extend higher than 35 feet, subject to staff review to ensure that any additional height will not create significant impacts on surrounding uses, the desired character of the area, or the architecture of the building to which it is attached; and
 - d. For the purpose of this section, height shall be the distance to the top of the normal display face from the established grade of the road from which the billboard is to be viewed (see diagram below).

2. The bottom edge of the sign face of freestanding billboards shall be at least 10 feet above the established grade of the road from which the billboard is to be viewed.
3. The bottom edge of the sign face of wall-mounted billboards shall be at least 8 feet above the ground level at the base of the wall.

E. Design standards.

1. Freestanding billboard signs

a. Billboard sign structures must, at all times, include a facing of proper dimensions to conceal back bracing, electrical equipment, and framework of structural members to present an attractive and finished appearance. During periods of repair, alteration, or copy change, such facing may be removed for a maximum period of 48 consecutive hours.

2-b. No more than two billboard faces shall be located on a single structure. Billboard faces located on the same structure shall be positioned back-to-back (i.e., their backs shall be parallel to each other).

3-c. Billboard faces must be in line with the support structure; offset or over-cantilevered structure designs are not allowed. (see illustration below)

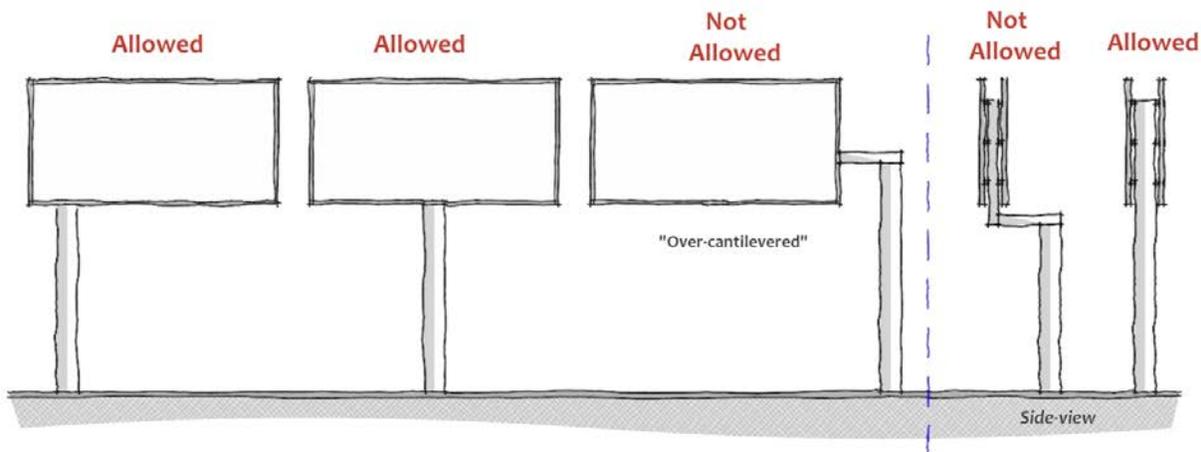

4-d. No billboard can be located in a manner that positions any portion of the sign face or structure above a building.

5-e. No freestanding billboard may be constructed on a site where there is a freestanding on-premises sign.

f. Freestanding billboard signs must also meet the requirements for freestanding on-premises signs in TMC Section 13.06.521.G.

3. No flashing billboards shall be permitted.
4. Signs shall not imitate or resemble traffic control devices.
5. Lighting must utilize LED or equivalently efficient lighting.

6. All billboard lights must be turned off during daylight hours and from midnight to 5 a.m.

G. Dispersal.

1. Freestanding billboard signs larger than 300 square feet in area shall be a minimum of 500 feet from other billboard structures apart, excepting billboard faces located on the same structure. This requirement also applies to any billboards within the City limits that would be too close to any billboard located outside the City limits.
2. Freestanding billboard signs 300 square feet in area or less shall be a minimum of 300 feet from other billboard structures apart, excepting billboard faces located on the same structure. This requirement also applies to any billboards within the City limits that would be too close to any billboard located outside the City limits.
3. Wall-mounted billboards shall not be located within 200 feet of another billboard visible along the same road corridor.

H. Buffering.

1. Sensitive uses/areas. No billboard shall be located in or within 250 feet of the following, whether within or outside the Tacoma City Limits:

2. Failure to maintain a billboard or its structure, including exterior painting, shall constitute a violation of this section and be subject to strict enforcement under the Land Use Code Enforcement procedures and penalties (TMC Section 13.05.100), which may include removal by the City at the expense of the property owner, sign owner, or permittee.
3. Graffiti on billboard sign faces or structures shall be abated by the property owner within 48 hours of notification or fines prescribed in TMC Section 13.05.100 for non-compliance will be levied against the property owner.

1. All billboards within the City which are not in compliance with the requirements of this section are considered to be nonconforming billboards. In addition to the provisions of TMC 13.06.523.L, nonconforming billboards shall be made to conform with the requirements of this section under the following circumstances:
 - a. When any substantial alteration is proposed on a property upon which a nonconforming billboard is located, the billboard shall be removed or brought into conformance with this section. For purposes of this provision, “substantial alteration” means all alterations within a two-year period whose cumulative value exceeds 200% of the value of the existing development or structure, as determined by the applicable Building Code, excluding purchase costs of the property and/or structure.

b. Whenever a building, or portion thereof, that has a legal nonconforming wall-mounted billboard (such as upon the roof or attached to a wall) is proposed to be expanded and/or remodeled, all legal nonconforming billboards shall be removed or brought into compliance with this section if the value of the alterations within any two-year period is greater than or equal to 50-percent of the value of the existing building, as determined by the Building Code, excluding purchase costs of the property and/or structure.

L. Amortization.

1. All legal nonconforming billboard signs shall be discontinued and removed or made conforming according to the following schedule (collectively the “amortization period”):

a. All legal nonconforming billboards within the R-2, R-4, S-10, C-1, RCX zoning districts and the CONS overlay district, shall be discontinued and removed ~~or made conforming~~ within three years after (the date of adoption).

b. All other legal nonconforming billboards (those not within the R-2, R-4, S-10, C-1, RCX zoning districts or the CONS overlay district) shall be discontinued and removed or made conforming within five years after (the date of adoption).

2. Nonconforming billboards that are not made conforming or removed by the above dates will result in enforcement action being taken pursuant to TMC Section 13.05.100.

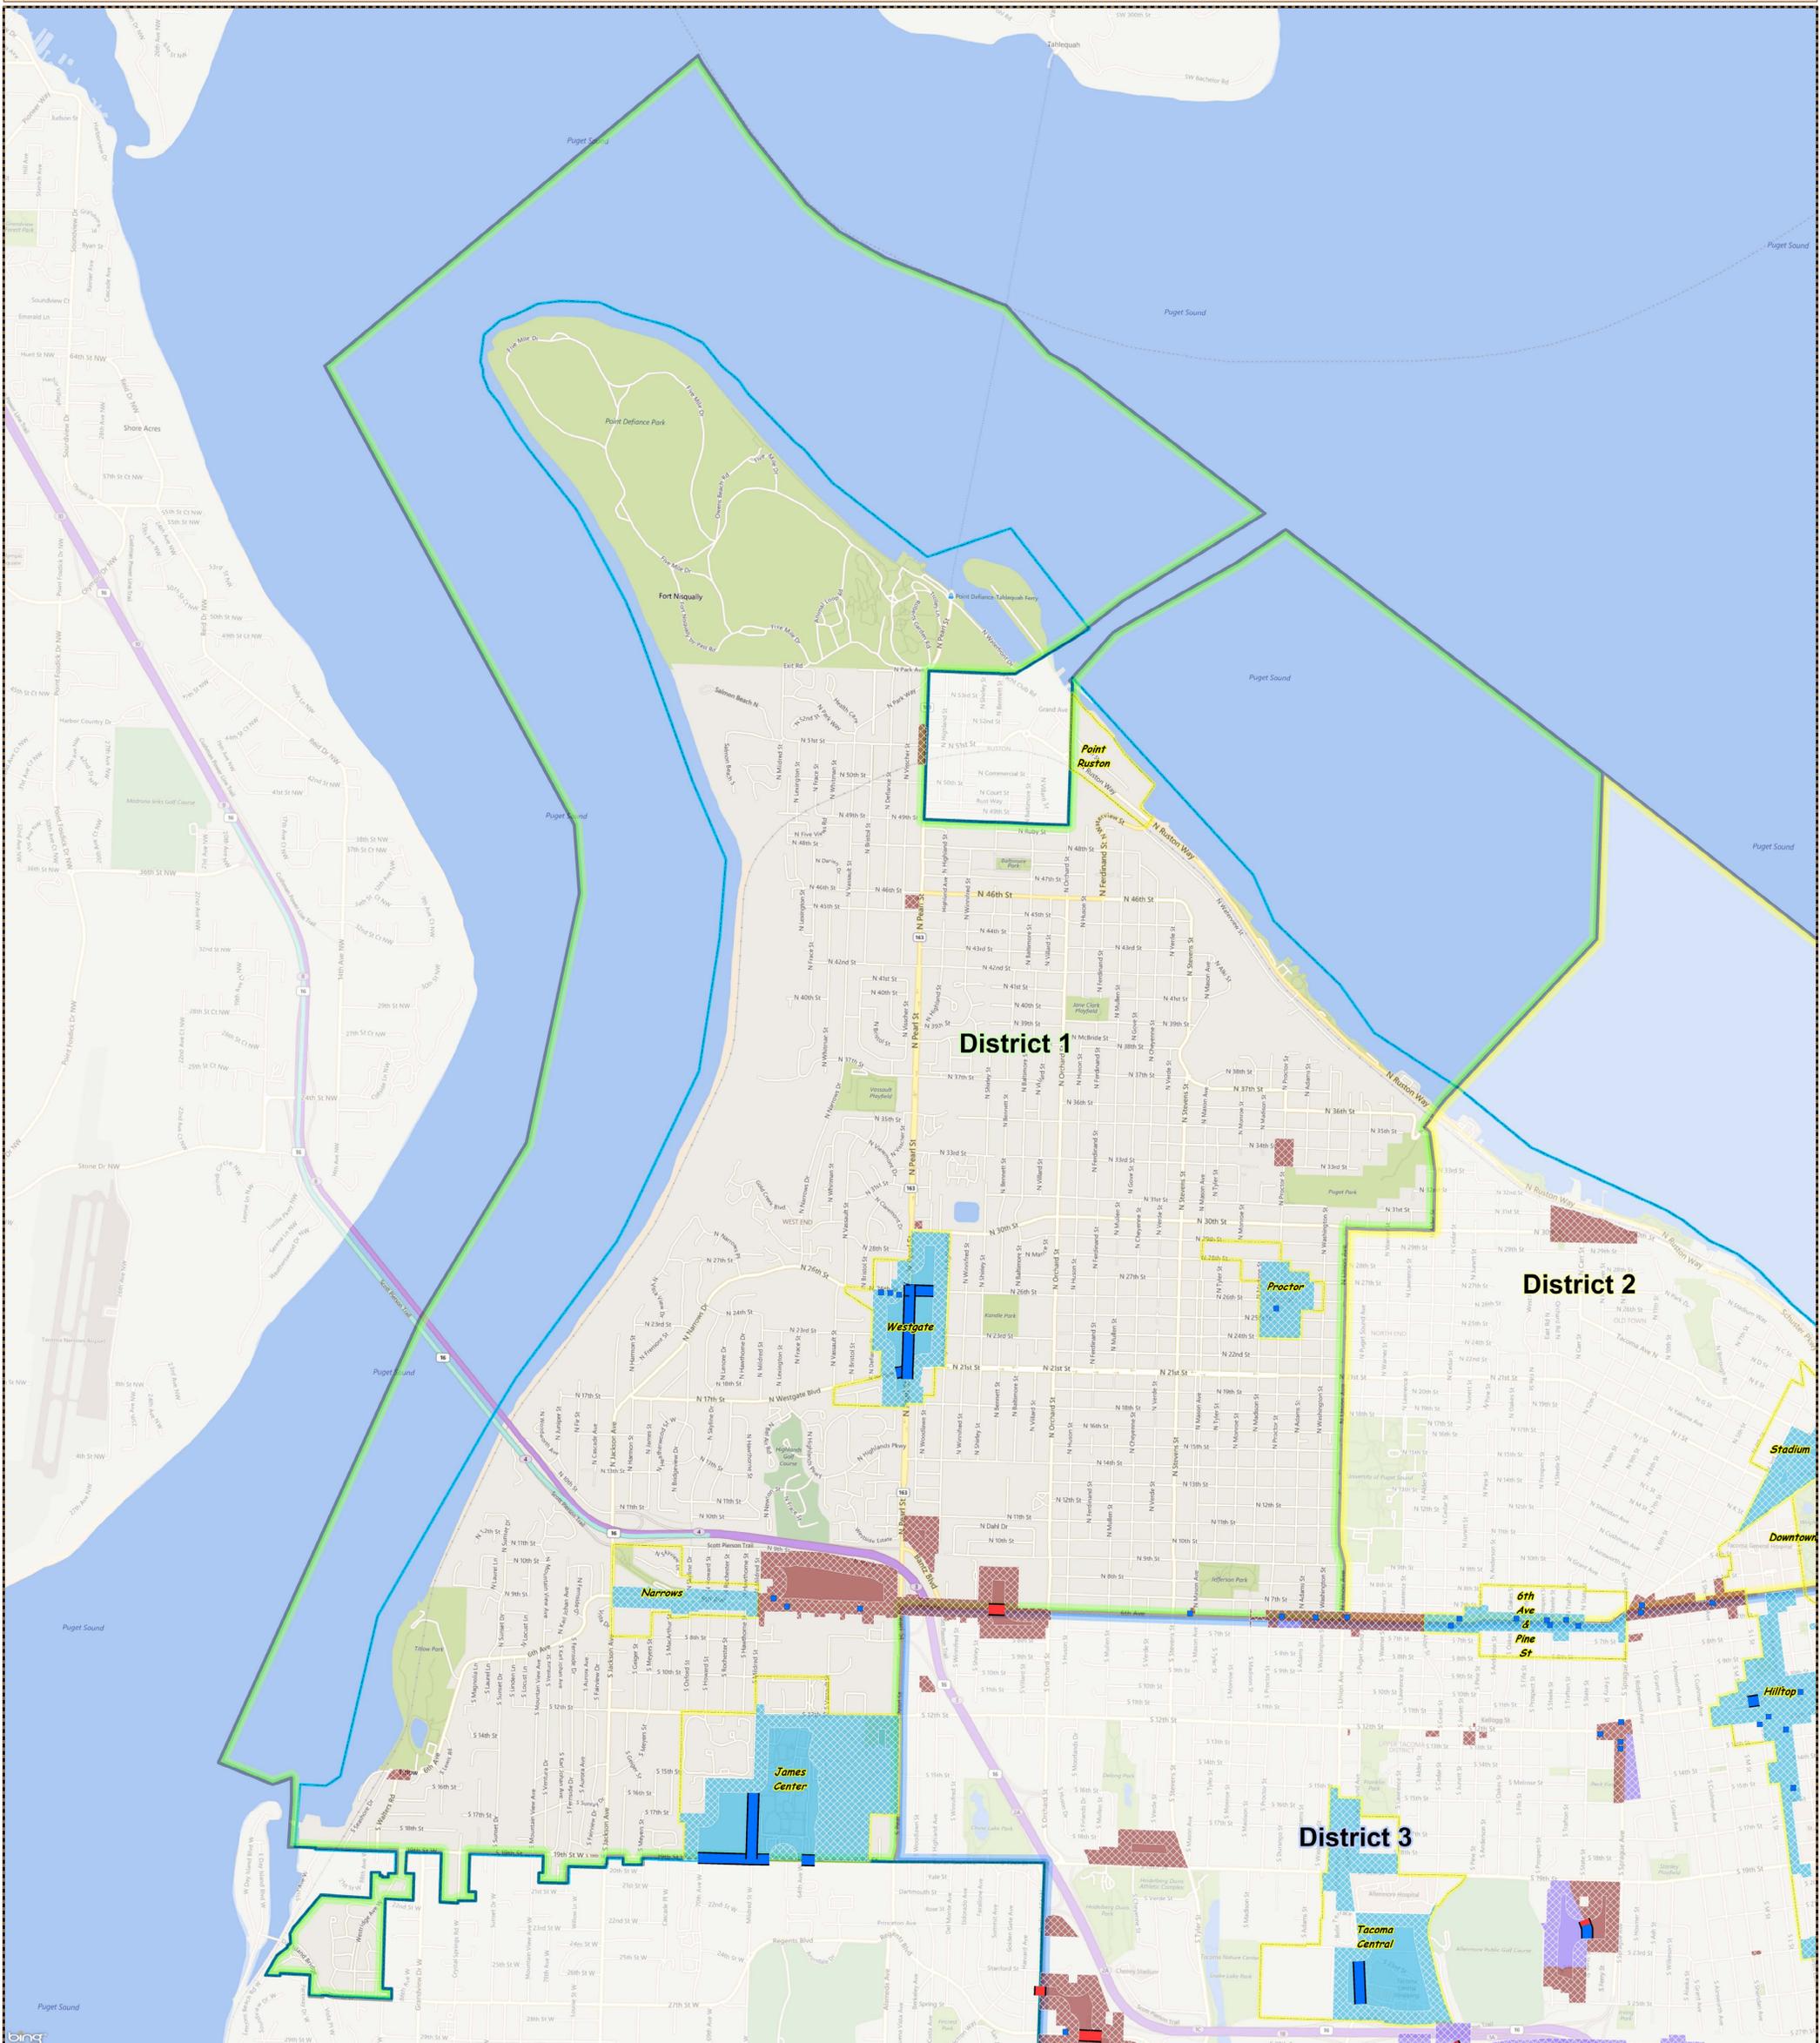

M. Severability.

1. If any section, subsection, paragraph, sentence, clause or phrase of this Chapter or its application to any person or situation should be held to be invalid or unconstitutional for any reason by a court of competent jurisdiction, such invalidity or unconstitutionality shall not affect the validity or constitutionality of the remaining portions of this Chapter or its application to any other person or situation.

October 15, 2015

Attached are a number of maps depicting various options for potential wall billboard receiving areas in Downtown Tacoma. The options presented are based on the original recommendation of 250 foot buffers. The Commission requested a number of buffering options for the downtown area to see if more receiving area could be generated.

- Option 1 Existing 250 foot buffers, minus the buffer around the Conservation district downtown
- Option 2 Option 1, and remove downtown schools buffer
- Option 3A Option 2, and reducing historic building buffer to 100 feet
- Option 3B Option 2, and no historic building buffer
- Option 4 Option 3B, and no DR buffer
- Option 5 Option 4, and DR allowed zone
- Option 6 Option 5, and no downtown dispersion from existing pole signs (presumably they would be removed)

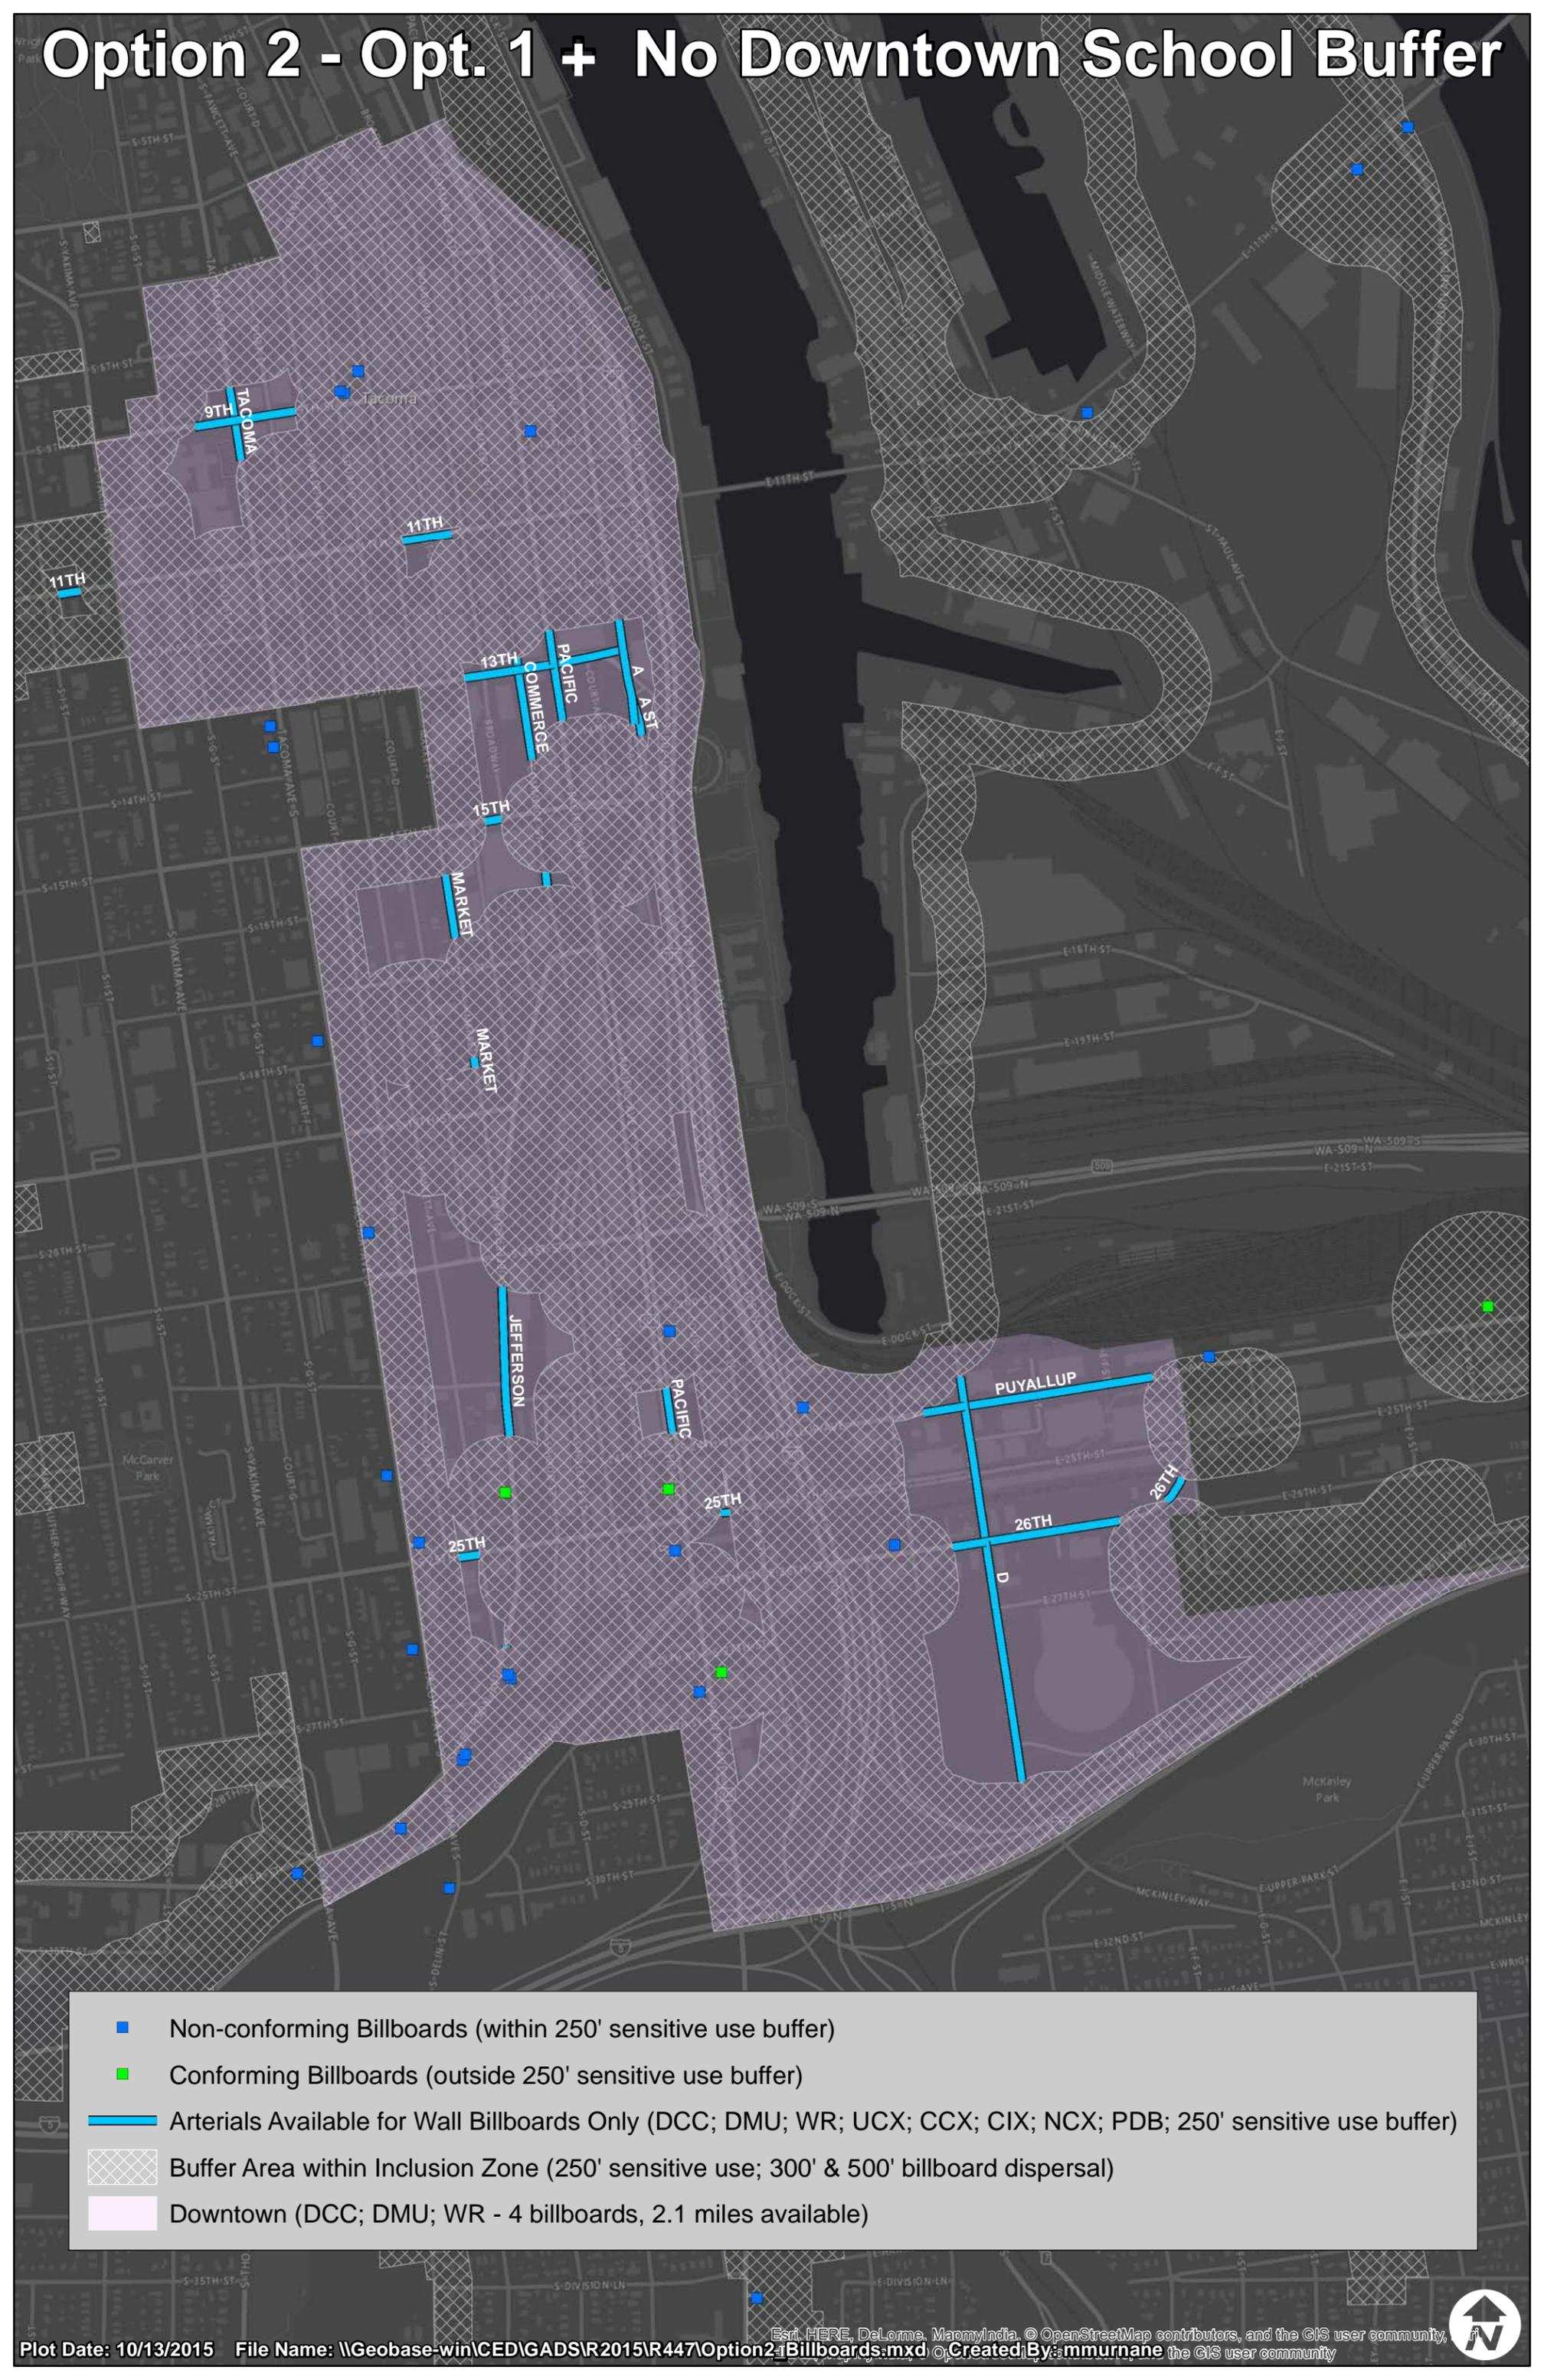

Option 1 - 250' Buffer, No Conservation Buffer

- Non-conforming Billboards (within 250' sensitive use buffer)
- Conforming Billboards (outside 250' sensitive use buffer)
- Arterials Available for Wall Billboards Only (DCC; DMU; WR; UCX; CCX; CIX; NCX; PDB; 250' sensitive use buffer)
- Buffer Area within Inclusion Zone (250' sensitive use; 300' & 500' billboard dispersal)
- Downtown (DCC; DMU; WR - 4 billboards, 1.9 miles available)

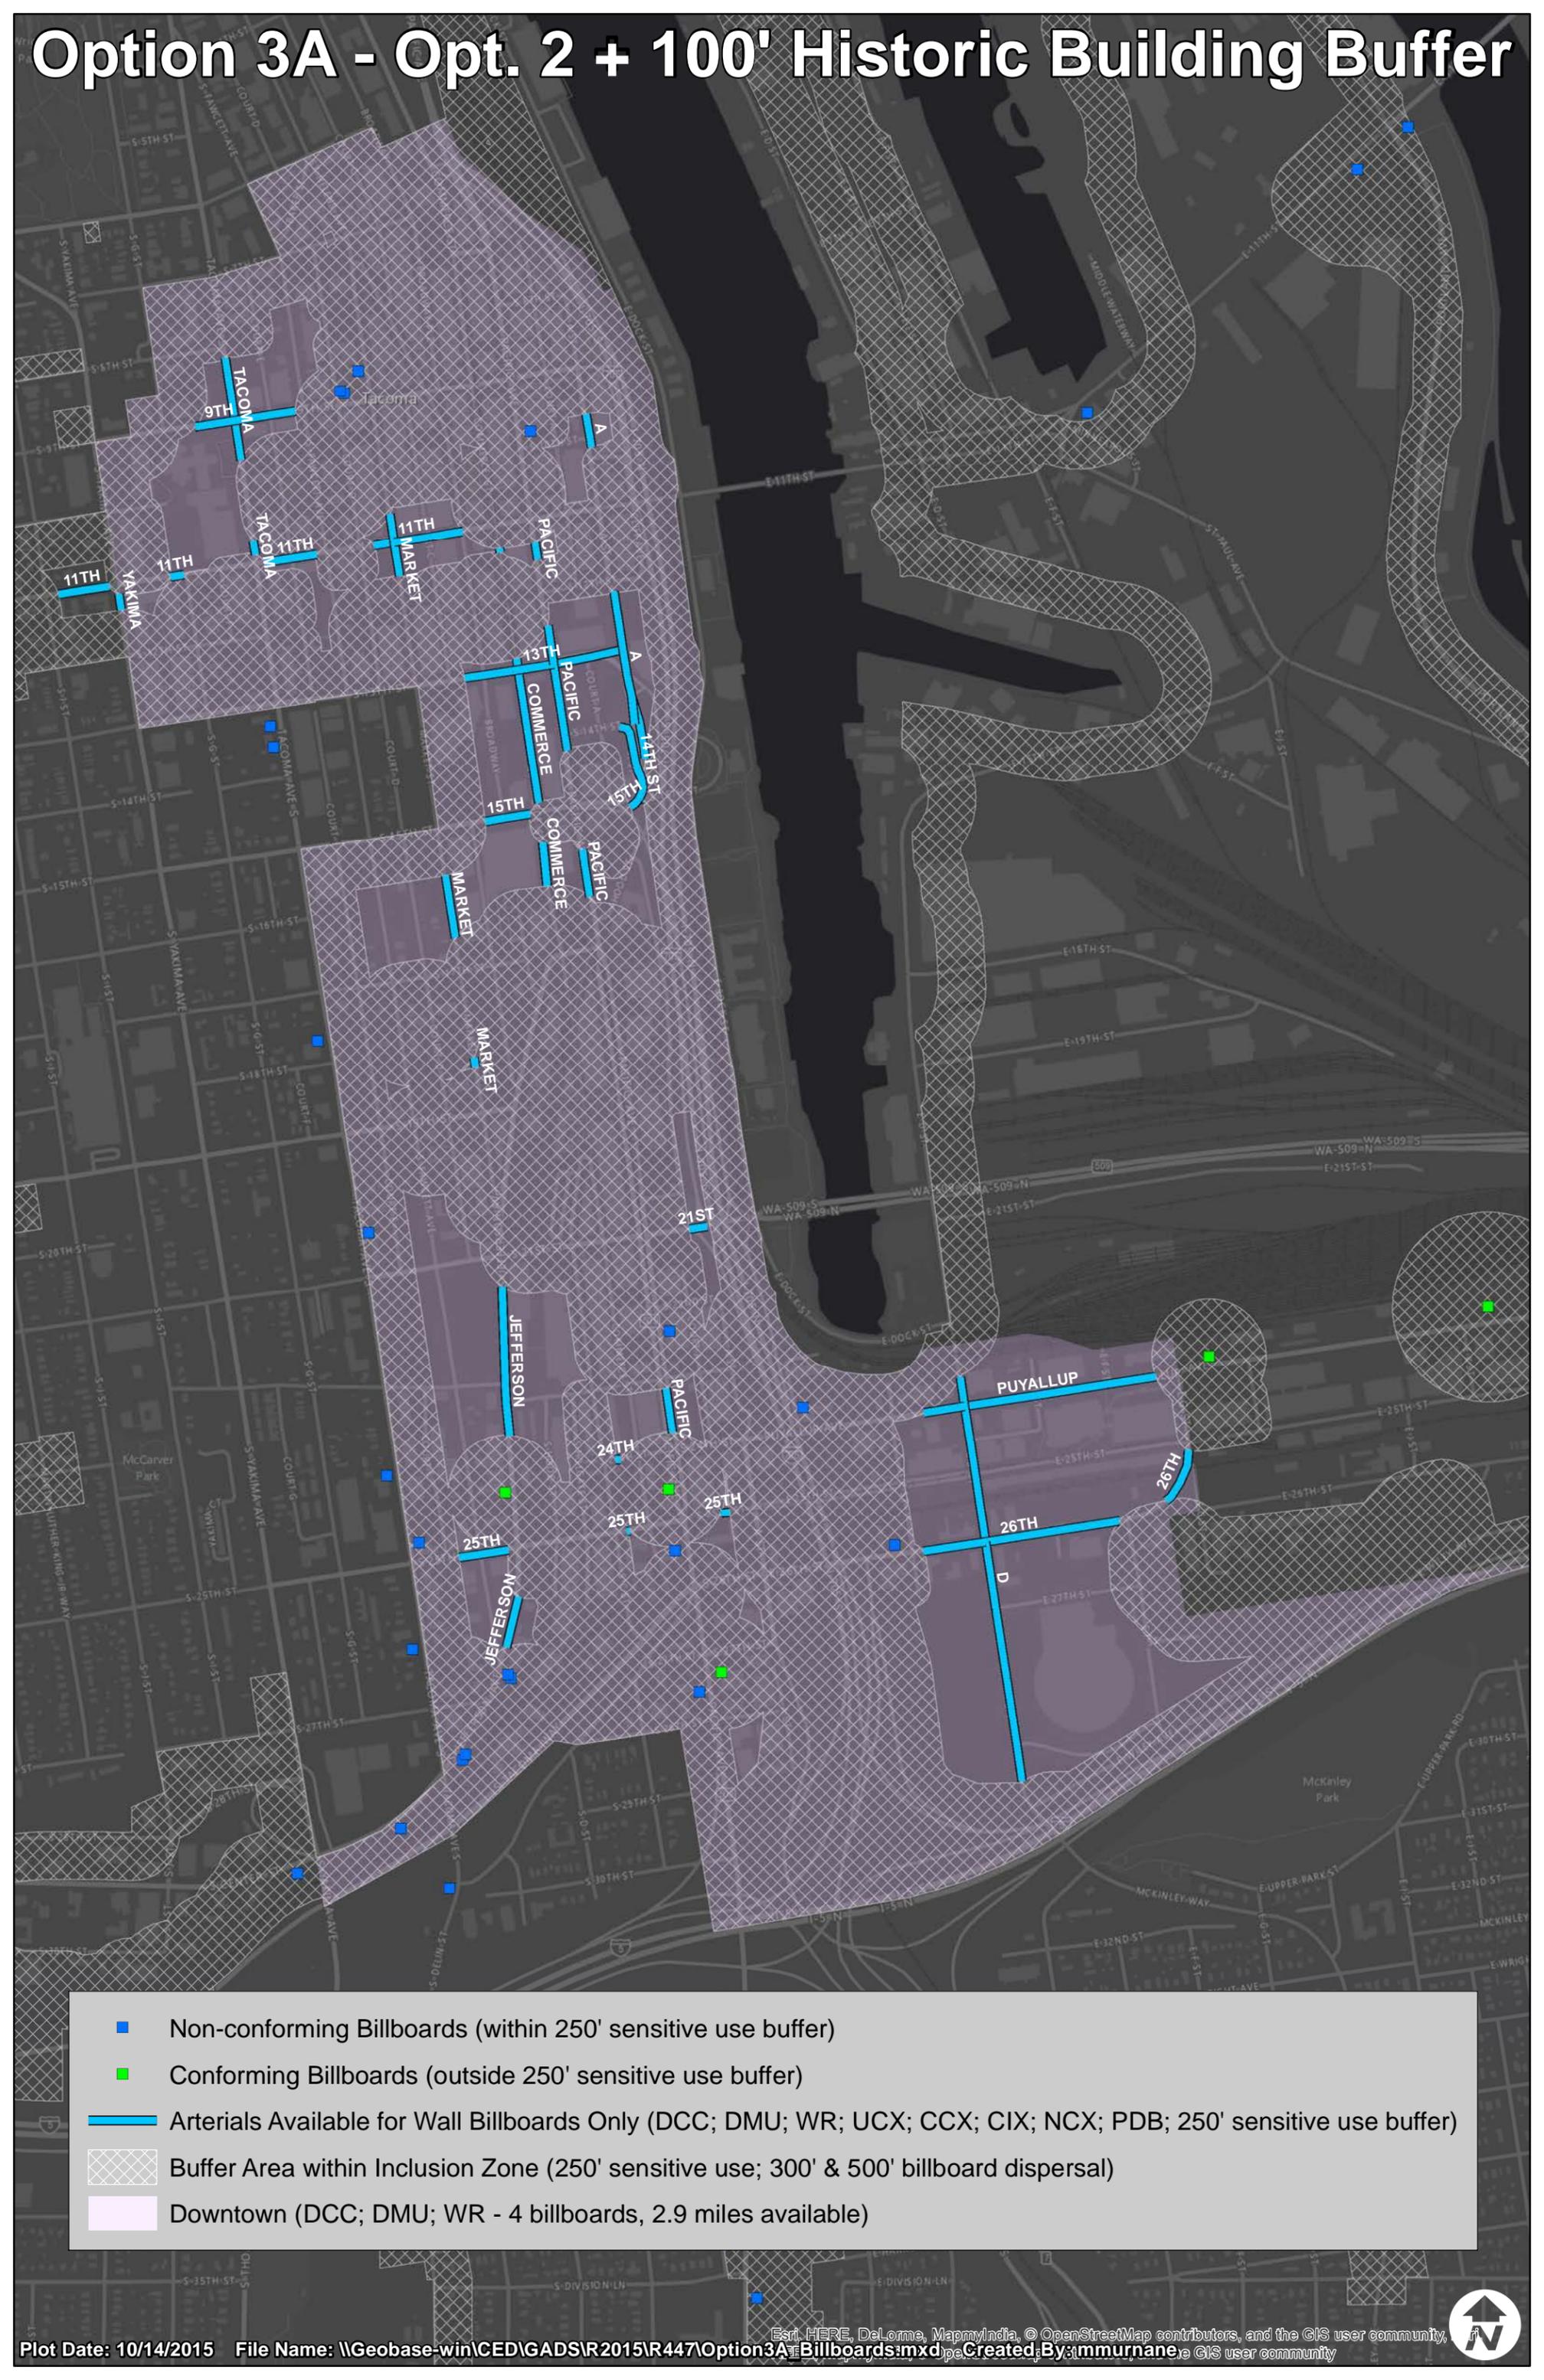

Option 2 - Opt. 1 + No Downtown School Buffer

- Non-conforming Billboards (within 250' sensitive use buffer)
- Conforming Billboards (outside 250' sensitive use buffer)
- Arterials Available for Wall Billboards Only (DCC; DMU; WR; UCX; CCX; CIX; NCX; PDB; 250' sensitive use buffer)
- Buffer Area within Inclusion Zone (250' sensitive use; 300' & 500' billboard dispersal)
